Could Coolidge Say No?
To Discourage Vice.
P. R. R. Flying Plans.
Reds, and a Mosquito.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1928.)

MR. DARROW, of the House Naval Affairs Committee, told President Coolidge his friends "still hoped he would be a candidate." The President replied: "I am afraid they will have to be disappointed."

Die-hard Coolidge enthusiasts will find SOME comfort in that word "afraid." A man cannot help being persuaded if arguments are good.

Suppose the President were convinced, as he may be, that his renomination and re-election, a second time, would boom business, increase employment, stabilize prosperity, and free his party from oil stain danger, could he continue to say no?

A WISE old poker player, as he raised, would say: "To discourage vice, make it expensive." Financial powers borrowed the idea yesterday, raising the price of "call money," which means gambling money, to 6 per cent, first time in more than a year.

That annoyed ardent bulls. Things had come to a pretty pass, they thought, if gentlemen engaged in street speculation, they must pay for money almost as much as a farmer borrowing to build a new barn.

OIL production in California, because of the "shut-in" plan, drops 18,250 barrels a day, enough to lower the whole national output. Oil stocks will be cheered by this news.

GENERAL ATTERBURY will sell $17,500,000 Pennsylvania Railroad stock to employes, a good way to interest them in their company.

AVIATION is a reality, says General Atterbury, and railroads should know it. He is said to plan for the Pennsylvania a part-railroad, part-flying machine service from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The traveler would spend daylight in the flying machine, night hours on the train, cross the continent in 48 hours, avoiding mountain flying. This rumor is not guaranteed.

THE conservative Japanese party, back of the Mikado, is worried by "an unusually grave situation," caused by communism.

"Red" theories imported from Russia do not agree with government by relations of the sun and moon.

A FRENCHMAN cultivates a mosquito that doesn't bite men and does drive out the biting mosquitoes. This new mosquito that bites other animals, even hens, not humans, might solve the mosquito disease-carrying problem.

Those Japanese "reds," providing an element that wouldn't bite the white races in any Asiatic-European war, might be very useful.

HENRY FORD interests the British more than any American has done in 50 years with two exceptions—Thomas A. Edison and Buffalo Bill. Ford says Britons should use more machinery and save labor. British unions will object to that, not having learned that only machinery fully used makes high wages possible.

When Ford saw a gigantic 50-acre dump that has been burning for centuries, he wanted to harness that and change lost heat into power.

However, the British government is not backward. It plans to harness the tide at the Severn mouth, expecting to get enough electric energy to run England's six biggest cities.

TWENTY-TWO United States warships are in Hawaiian waters. Eighty-nine more will go west through the Golden Gate on April 18.

If real war should start, those 111 warships would hurry to the nearest harbor, to be cleverly camouflaged and hidden from air and submarine attack. Then the country would wish it had spent on submarines and airships half the money thrown away on battleships.

MINERS ASK U. S. RULE

By MAX HENRICI,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Fannie Hurst's testimony that conditions in Western Pennsylvania mining camps are "worse than in Russia" was used by Thomas C. Townsend, of Charleston, W. Va., counsel for the United Mine Workers, in an address to the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today, as an argument for Federal regulation of the coal industry. He contended that the findings of the great writer who investigated the situation for The Sun-Telegraph clearly demonstrated the need for governmental inquiry, with a view to the enactment of remedial legislation.

Townsend was answering the argument of Southern West Virginia coal operators who, in the effort to withhold their production costs from the committee, have contended that Congress had no authority to make such an inquiry and, furthermore, lacked jurisdiction because coal mining is not interstate commerce.

The miners' attorney turned against the operators the very pleas that they used when they went into

Judge Halts Din

Shouting "Liar!" from the audience in the hearing of the Ku Klux Klan case in Federal Court today, William Hohman, a klansman among the spectators, was expelled from the courtroom by order of Judge W. H. S. Thomson.

The incident occurred during the testimony of Dr. Charles S. Hunter, of Verona, a member of Unity Klan, and threw the court into an uproar.

The witness named Hohman as a man present at the trial of Van A. Barrickman in William Penn Klan.

"That's a lie," came a voice from the audience.

"Put that man out," ordered Judge Thomson after the confusion subsided.

"I apologize," shouted Hohman as he marched out ahead of the bailiff.

Samuel G. Graham, of Hazelwood, a lieutenant colonel of the Klavaliers, testified his duty was to carry out the executive orders in bringing in men for trial.

S. L. Clark, of Hazelwood, exalted cyclops, testified the women in his district were active in demonstrations and sometimes did not wait for official authority.

CITY WATER MENACED

With city engineers racing against time to remedy the situation, Pittsburgh is facing a serious water shortage.

The cause is the deterioration of the giant concrete intake conduit from the Allegheny River to the Ross Pumping Station.

Had the gradual crumbling of the conduit—a concrete pipe 10 feet in diameter—not been discovered, Pittsburghers would have arisen some morning to discover they were without water for baths, shaves or coffee.

As matters stand now, the danger of a break is not over, but the city has started immediate work on a canal 48 feet in depth and about 25 feet in width leading from the river to the pumping station. With luck, the canal will be completed and a new concrete conduit placed in it before the old one collapses and cuts off the water supply.

As the damaged conduit is only an intake pipe, digging of the canal will be sufficient to avert a shortage of water, although for permanent use it will be necessary to build a new concrete conduit at a cost of between $200,000, and $250,000.

Ask N. Y. For King's Aide

HARRISBURG, April 11.—Request was sent today by Pennsylvania officials to New York authorities asking for the return to Allegheny county of Sol Rosenberg to face a charge of conspiracy. Rosenberg is now being held in New York City.

He was implicated with William L. King and Baraham Weinberg with having brought charges against several Pittsburghers last June in the Federal Court for violations of the prohibition laws. Rosenberg fled when the prosecution he was interested in failed.

AUTOISTS JOLTED

Six thousand Pennsylvania motorists, including 350 in Allegheny county, who thought they were to go free for automobile law violations committed prior to January 1, when the new Pennsylvania vehicle code went into effect, were rudely jolted today. Justice William B. Linn, of the State Superior Court, handed down an opinion in Pittsburgh in a Philadelphia case, holding that the new code, while it does not contain an actual saving clause, does not repeal the effectiveness of the laws in effect prior to this year.

The decision is based upon an interpretation of the Legislature's intent when passing the vehicle code.

Following an opinion in the local court by Judge Elder W. Marshall, February 13, District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner had non-suited 350 old automobile law violations cases. District attorneys throughout the state also took similar action, until, it is said, the non-suits total 6,000.

Just Before the Battle

By DONIE BUSH,
Manager Pittsburgh Pirates.

"YES, I think we have a good chance to repeat in the National League race. We realize that we will have stiff opposition all the way. Last year I ventured to state that the fight would continue right down to the last week. Everybody knows that we had to go to within one day of the ending to clinch the pennant.

Donie Bush.

"This year I look for more hard competition. It would not surprise me if six clubs were to be in the race as late as July. The Braves are quite a bit stronger than they were a year ago and the Dodgers also are likely to make trouble.

"The Pirates jump off in a physical condition that is disappointing. Losing two fine pitchers like Ehmke and Meadows at the outset is rather tough luck. The others are not as far advanced as they were a year ago. However, we expect to swing into a winning stride before the race gets along very far."

By BILL McKECHNIE,
Manager St. Louis Cardinals.

"IT is my personal opinion that a manager makes a mistake in claiming a pennant before the season starts. So many things can happen in the way of sickness and injuries that such a conjecture to me seems wild.

Bill McKechnie.

"I will however, state that I think the Cardinals will be in flag race all year. Outside of Ray Blades, our club is in fine condition. We realize we are up against one of the finest clubs in the land in tackling Donie Bushs' Pirates at the start, but we are prepared for anything.

"There are four or five clubs in the flag race, in my opinion. If Cincinnati gets good pitching they will be troublesome. If they don't get good slab-work they may lag far behind. But the Cardinals, the Pirates, the Giants and Cubs are very much in the race."

MINER KILLED WHEN BUMPED FROM TRUCK

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 11.—Samuel Ancozilla, 55, of Finleyville, a coal miner, was killed instantly when hurled from the tailgate of a truck in the Finleyville-Library road late yesterday. His skull was fractured. George E. Coffield, employe of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, driver of the truck said the man was bounced from the truck when it hit a rut in the road.

AWARDED VERDICT IN AUTO TITLE SUIT

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 11.—E. W. Yansickle, of Markleysburg, Pa., was awarded a verdict of $327 yesterday, in his suit against Ross Fike also of Markleysburg, for alleged misrepresentation in the sale of an auto. It is alleged Fike represented the car as being a 1927 model, whereas it was found in resale the car was a 1920 model.

BUCS DEPEND ON KREMER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, April 11.—The best fireworks the National League can offer as it begins its fifty-third season, will be set off here this afternoon, when the Pirates, champions of the honorable circuit, and the Cardinals, runners-up in 1927, jump off in the bigchase of 154 games.

Many things can happen in a fight that continues for almost six months, but most of the critics agree that the reigning champs and their early adversaries are in a position to go right on through the year as flag contenders with three of the other four clubs having enough backers to give them a dignified rating. The concensus of opinion seems to be that the Quakers will not have much opposition for their cellar honors, yet baseball is so uncertain that this statement may have to be retracted before Labor Day.

CLUBS CRIPPLED

To get down to the important matter locally, the Pirates and Cardinals are going to the tape somewhat handicapped. Donie Bush has two star pitchers on the hospital squad in Carmen Hill and Lee Meadows. Moreover, he has Pie Traynor suffering with a sore arm and Johnny Gooch out of whack. Skipper McKechnie of the Redbirds expects to start with Ray Blades out of action, and Blades is quite a star when he is right.

Remy Kremer and Jess Haines, two of the outstanding pitchers of the great sport, will oppose each other in the inaugural. The two big sharpshooters took final workouts yesterday and today they were on edge for the important, if not significant, encounter. Earl Smith and Bob O'Farrell, two catchers who know how to slug the old apple, will be under the bat for their respective teams.

McKechnie intends to use a stranger in the lineup in place of Blades. The youngster is Wattie Roettger, who learned the rudiments of the game on the sandlots of St. Louis. The boy has made a marked impression on Skipper Bill, Jack Onslow, and the other veterans of the Redbird outfield.

Blades leads off when he is playing, but with him out of action,

250,000 JAM FIRST GAMES

International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Approximately a quarter of a million rabid fans in eight major league cities scanned the heavens with anxious eyes today, left instructions to be telephoned to the office that they were violently ill, and forthwith departed for the park of their favorite baseball team in the best of health and spirit.

Enthusiasm was rampant, for today marks the official opening of the baseball season. A day when even chronic tailenders look like champions to their loyal supporters, who have temporarily forgotten the disappointments of yesteryear.

The enthusiasm was fairly uproarious in Boston, where the astounded fans turned out in droves to marvel at the lowly Red Sox, who jumped to first place in the American League by defeating the Senators, 7 to 5, in yesterday's "false start" at Washington. The game was moved ahead one day in order to give the opening Presidential sanction.

The usual parade and flag-raising ceremony will precede the start of each of the fight games today. Predictions of "overcast skies and possibly rain at night" in several of the eight cities failed to dampen the ardor of the fans, who began gathering at the various parks long before the gates were opened.

BEATEN BY WOMEN

Carl Wolcott (right), district organizer of the United Mine Workers of America, was beaten by a crowd of women at Avella when he refused relief to insurgents and their families. He is talking to Nicholas Ertle, "boss picket" at Avella (left), and a striking miner.

TROOPERS WATCH MEETING

State police were called when a group of militant women led an attack on Wolcott and his assistants, who attempted to enforce the union policy of "no relief to insurgents." Another attempt was made to distribute the food and clothing, but the insurgents demanded a meeting (above). Nearly 500 men attended.

CRUST

Judy Ritz, sturdy son of a striking miner, at Avella, appeared happy with only a crust of bread.

RELIEF FROM FRIENDS

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Siders, Avella, received a box of food and clothing from friends in St. Louis. This old man, with tears in his eyes, told how he and his wife share what they get with their neighbors. A son was killed in France and the Siders even share their monthly compensation

NO MORE COAL

Louise ozel and John Gritz, Avella, were sent out to bring in some coal, but the pile had dwindled until it was level with the ground. "We have had no coal for a week," they said.

IDENTIFIED BY DEATH BID

NORFOLK, Va., April 11.—(AP.)—The body of Commander T. G. Ellyson, a native of Richmond, Va., one of three Naval airmen who disappeared with a seaplane after leaving Hampton Roads for Annapolis at 2 a. m. February 28, was recovered this morning at Willoughby, a Norfolk suburb, where it was washed ashore.

Identity was established by a radiogram from his wife, found in one of his pockets, telling of the illness of their child. It was in response to this message that the flight from Norfolk to Annapolis was undertaken.

Charles D. Barber, of Ocean View, who was walking along the beach shortly before daylight this morning, stumbled over the body and notified police. Commander Ellyson's face had been badly crushed, presumably when the plane crashed. He wore an aviator's suit over civilian clothes.

Fall Kept Sinclair Lease Secret, Trial Told

"MUZZLE" PUT ON AIDES

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—A mantle of secrecy and silence hung heavily over the leasing of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve to Harry F. Sinclair, the government developed today in the oil man's trial for criminal conspiracy to defraud the nation of that land.

So great was the desire of ex-Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, who negotiated the lease, to make sure that no inkling thereof leaked to the public that six full days after the deal had been consummated he caused a memorandum to be circulated among his subordinates warning against publicity "of any kind" in connection with the oil reserves.

This was developed in the course of the examination of Assistant Secretary of Interior E. C. Finney, who identified the memorandum.

FINNEY UNINFORMED

Fall, co-defendant with Sinclair, is charged with having taken a $233,000 bribe to put over the lease. He is too ill, however, to stand trial.

Not only the public was kept in ignorance, it appeared, but Finney, whose job it is to personally handle all public land leases, never saw the Teapot Dome lease, was not consulted about it, and first heard of its existence six days after it was signed, he testified.

Further, he revealed in his testimony that the general practice of advertising for competitive bids had not been followed in the case of Teapot Dome.

The departmental memorandum that Finney identified admonished interior officials that the naval oil reserves were being handled by the secretaries of Interior and Navy, "but not in the routine manner."

It was dated April 13, 1922. The [illegible] signed April 6, but [illegible] mention of the fact [illegible]ndum.

Harry M. Blackmer, former American oil man, was called futilely three times today at the trial.

Blackmer is one of the three missing witnesses in the Teapot Dome case. At present, he is in France with a subpena in his pocket which he is ignoring.

The government also would like to question him, James E. O'Neil, also in Europe, and Henry Smith Osler, last heard of in Africa.

THE KLAN UNMASKED

(Copyright, 1928, by International News Service)

In yesterday's installment of the affidavit of David C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan of Indiana, in which conditions in that organization are exposed as part of the court record of the case being heard here seeking to bar the klan from Pennsylvania, the tactics of the klan group in attempting to use women to besmirch the names of reputable men was told.

Today Stephenson's declaration tells of how Senator Simeon D. Fess was made the object of a plot, because he had voted against a bill to abolish parochial schools by national legislation.

He tells, too, of plots of similar nature against other men and of how, for the first time in his work with the klan, threats were made against his life after he protested against the killing of Tom Austin, a klan agent, because Austin had refused to help in a plot against him—Stephenson.

Try to Frame Fess

The affidavit continues:

Another instance was where attempts were made to involve the name of Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, in a compromising way with a woman. The reason for doing that was that because Senator Fess (then Senator elect, but a member of the House of Representatives) while a member of the House, had voted against and had opposed on the floor a bill known as the Sterling-Towner law, or, rather, Sterling-Towner bill. The bill had to do with the abolition of parochial schools, and had for its obective some other purposes.

I recall very distinctly having investigated the bill at the time and came to the conclusion that it was not only an unjust, unwholesome thing, but that it was iniquitous and absolutely un-American in that it sought to delegate to the Federal government powers that were not primarily intended to be vested in the Federal government, and in that respect I regarded it as one of the many dangerous steps toward centralization of power and designed to accomplish nothing good.

Thereafter, pursuant to that conclusion, based upon my investigation, I endeavored to enlist the active opposition of all members in the state over which I had control against the Sterling-Towner law, and succeeded in stirring up some sentiment against it.

A klan magazine published a series of articles violently attacking the

Mark Hanna's Daughter Upsets Election, Like Father Used to Do

Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 11.

WHAT the imperturbable Mark Hanna used to do, his daughter has done—upset an election. Like her father, Ruth Hanna McCormick felt Illinois' political pulse several months ago and decided she had a chance to win one of the two Republican nominations for Congressman-at-Large. Although the two incumbents, Henry R. Rathbone and Richard Yates, and five others were in the field, she made a vigorous state-wide campaign. Today, apparently she leads the field.

If she wins in the general election, she will be the first Congresswoman-at-Large from Illinois.

Smiling a characteristic Hanna smile, Mrs. McCormick heard the returns last night. With her were scores of supporters, among them Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, of Washington, and her daughter, Katrine McCormick.

"My nomination," she said, "marks the greatest step forward achieved by women, politically."

BID ORDINANCE AFFIRMED

The Malone ordinance requiring that all city material be sold by competitive bids was affirmed by the Finance Committee of Council yesterday. It was introduced after it had been learned that Director of Supplies B. L. Succop had disposed of scrap iron at the filtration plant and other places at private sales, getting $162 after, according to testimony presented at a hearing last week, $866 had been offered.

CUE VICTIM NEAR DEATH, SUSPECT REARRESTED

Fined $50 for alleged participation in a brawl at Forbes and Brady streets Saturday, Stanley Rodgowski, of Kirkpatrick street, was rearrested yesterday when it developed that a man he is said to have struck is reported dying at the Homeopathic Hospital. The victim is Adam Kozim, of 156 Moultrie street. Kozim was hit on the head with a billiard cue and it is believed he suffered a fractured skull.

JURY CLEARS MURRAY OF MURDER BY AUTO

Martin Murray, 26, of 2807 Foster street was freed today of the murder charge on which he had been on trial in Criminal Court since Monday. He was acquitted yesterday of killing A. J. Blume, 41, of Millvale, who was fatally injured when hit by a taxicab. It was alleged that Murray had stolen the cab and was driving it when it struck Blume. Murray denied driving the machine.

munition stored in caves and barns, including dynamite, "used in bombings."

Attempts to bring out that the klan in Ohio had been instrumental in shaping political policy failed, but it was testified the klan was active in its influence in obtaining appointments.

Dr. C. F. Oyer, one of the defendants, told of the revoking of the charter of William Penn Klan. He described Dr. H. S. Shaw's action in rushing into the hall in March, 1927, "like a wild bull" and peremptorily declaring the charter revoked.

Another "banished member," the Rev. John F. Strayer, of Latrobe, testified largely about tecnicalities of klan procedure.

That Hiram Wesley Evans, imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, was directly responsible for the Carnegie riots in 1923, was brought out in the testimony today in the third day's session of the hearing in the klan suit.

KLANSMEN ARMED

N. C. Hogue, of 736 Orchard avenue, Swissvale, who described himself as a "part time kleagle," said he had visited the office of Sam D. Rich, Pennsylvania grand dragon, two or three times a week prior to the Carnegie riot and, with other klan officers, was to be prepared for trouble. This meant, he said, that the men were to be armed.

Hogue said he protested with Rich against the march, but the later declared the orders were inexorable.

Under a subterfuge, Hogue said, he made his way to Glendale with the gate money—about $300—wrapped in a newspaper.

How Oklahoma klansmen made victims whip each other was told by Frank S. Lanhan, of Sand Springs, Okla., the next witness. They joined left arms, he said, and used whips with their right, night riders adding blows when they were too light.

WOMEN HAD CLUBS

Mrs. Mamie H. Bittner, a member of the Homestead Women's Klan, said at Wilkinsburg demonstration, where more than 1,000 women took part, the female marchers were provided with sticks.

At this point Attorney Van A. Barrickman, examining the witness, produced a club about two feet long, bound with a leather thong at the handle end. This the witness identified as a form of "stick" carried by all the women in the parade.

"How were these clubs provided?" asked Barrickman.

"They were brought in trucks and passed around to the women before the parade started."

Mrs. Bitner testified that many of the men in the parade were armed with revolvers.

Jack May Stage Comeback, but on Stage

NEW YORK, April 11.—(AP.)—Jack Dempsey may come back—but for David Belasco, not Tex Rickard. Belasco has never promoted a Dempsey bout, but he will confer with the former heavyweight champion on his arrival in New York today.

Mr. Belasco hopes to send Dempsey into a ring for a championship fight on the stage in a play written by Max Marcin.

Dempsey would be called on in the main to say it with his fists as his part would include only half a dozen lines.

At least one obstacle, the size of the purse, must be hurdled before a contract is signed. Dempsey's friends say he cannot be paid in stage money.

the federal courts and obtained injunctions against the strikers. The injunctions were based on the theory that interference with coal mining was interference with interstate commerce. Townsend cited the United States Supreme Court decision invalidating West Virginia's natural gas law of 1919, on the ground that it obstructed interstate commerce, as sustaining his contention that coal mining is also subject to federal control. He mentioned the federal pure food and drug law as a precedent for supervision of the bituminous industry by the United States government.

The operators' counsel will present their concluding argument against the inquiry tomorrow. They have no hope of stopping the investigation altogether, but will strive to keep their books from the committee's scrutiny. The examination of witnesses will be resumed Friday.

ONE KILLED, 20 HURT IN TRAIN WRECK

ENGINEER KILLED

The engineer of a Williamsport-Philadelphia express train of the Reading Railroad was fatally injured and 20 other trainmen and passengers hurt when the express collided head-on with a northbound Reading freight two miles east of Sunbury, Pa. The locomotives were telescoped and five cars of the freight train wrecked. Misreading of orders is believed to have been responsible for the accident. Above is shown the telescoped engines.

BATTERED

The force of the crash battered rolling stock, particularly that making up freight into so much junk to be salvaged. Here is a view just before wreckers reached the scene.

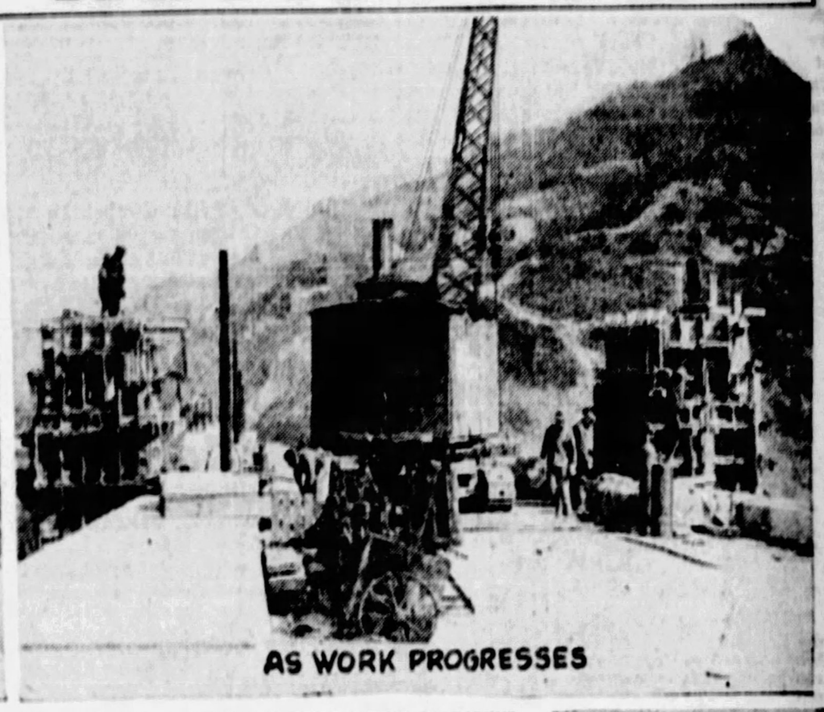
"BEAUTIFY IT," SAY WOMEN.



AS WORK PROGRESSES

PHOTOS BY SUN-TELEGRAPH STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER.

The roadway's summit is just beyond this view, where workmen are pushing forward rapidly. A few steps ahead presents a magnificent view of the city and at night the drive may be the mecca for those seeking a panoramic view of the steel district. Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky is president of the Congress.

MRS. CARL E. COSLOWSKY

FOR BOARD

Among important business measures to come up at the board meeting of the Congress of Women's Clubs tomorrow is the advisibility of the Congress taking some share in beautifying the hillsides above the new Mt. Washington boulevard. Such a movement will fall to the public welfare department, headed by Mrs. Walter F. Cooley.

OTHERS MAY HELP

Devoid of practically all foliage, the jagged rocks shown above may soon give way to trees, bushes, hedges and vines. From the start of the city's newest thoroughfare, at the south approach to Liberty Bridge, to its terminal, Merrimac street, Mt. Washington, the hillsides may be transformed into gardens of shrubbery and blooms. A number of civic organizations in the city plan to participate in adding beauty to the boulevard. The boulevard is nearing completion.

CARRY ON IN FEDERAL COURT BATTLE . .

Here are some of the prominent figures aiding in the counter-suit attack being waged in Federal Court on the existence of the Ku Klux Klan in Pennsylvania. James R. Ramsey (left), former commander of grand dragon's guards of Ohio, testified for the five "banished members" of the order under the questioning of Van A. Barrickman (right), chief counsel and one of the five defendants, and Attorney Lewis C. Walkinshaw (left center). Mrs. Pearl Canty, Philadelphia, recited facts concerning the "Purple Robe," klansmen's group within the klan, known as the "Purple Dragon."

Will Urges Nick, Ohio's Favorite Son, to Run

WILL ROGERS

CINCINNATI, O., April 11.—You have heard about Ohio's favorite sons. Well, I have been all through the state and if you take it from me the most popular native son they have had there is Nick Longworth. So what's the matter with Nick for candidate? He is the most able and popular speaker the House has had. In fact the greatest since Alexander Hamilton. Everybody talks about what a great campaign Al will make. Well Nick can stay with him, I don't care how late he campaigns.

Yours,
Colonel Rogers late of Kentucky.

P. S.—Did you read about those great Kentucky basketball players?

"BIG BILL'S" MACHINE BEATEN

International News Service.

CHICAGO, April 11.—In what is characterized "the greatest political upheaval in the history of Illinois," the state Republican faction headed by United States Senator Charles S. Deneen has scored a landslide victory over the "America First" forces headed by Gov. Len Small, Mayor "Big Bill" Thompson, of Chicago, and Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney of Cook county.

Incomplete returns from yesterday's bitterly contested primary election indicate Louis L. Emmerson, secretary of state, has defeated Small for the governorship nomination by over 50,000 votes. Practically every important Deneen candidate was swept to victory on the crest of Emmerson's landslide.

Otis F. Glenn, Deneen entry for the nomination of United States Senator, won over Frank L. Smith, the rejected former senator-elect, by an estimated majority of 150,000.

In the Cook county contest between State Attorney Robert E. Crowe and Judge John A. Swanson for the nomination of state's attorney, Swanson won by an estimated majority of 125,000.

Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom, on the Deneen ticket, was successful for renomination.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick and Henry R. Rathbone won the nominations for congressmen-at-large.

OFFERED CABBY $60 TO AID IN "STICKUP"

Two patrons in his cab offered him $60 if he would take part in a "stickup job," Cary Stewart, cab driver, testified in Allegheny Police Court today against Richard Johnson, of 206 West Stockton avenue, and Howard Ours, of 211 Anderson street. The men were arrested in Johnson's home early today after Stewart had reported the offer to police. They are being held.

FOOD LACK CAUSES GRIEF

By AL GOUGH,
Staff Correspondent.

AVELLA, Pa., April 11.—Nine hundred or more striking miners' families in eight local unions of the United Mine Workers of America are clamoring for relief, it was revealed at a mass meeting here yesterday. The strikers say they have had nothing from the union for almost two weeks.

District Organizer Carl Wolcott says he is determined to carry out the decree of district officials that nothing will be given to insurgents who sent delegates to the national "Save the Union" conference in Pittsburgh on April 1.

Two attempts to distribute food and clothing to the loyal John L. Lewis adherents have resulted in loud protests from the insurgents and state police have been called to forestall trouble.

Sergt. William Jones, in charge of the state police detail, visited the union barracks where insurgents and "standpatters" live in an astonishing state of segregation. The insurgents are in the majority and they express great bitterness toward the Lewis adherents.

He entered one of the dingy apartments and talked to a miner and his wife. He was shown through the flimsy wooden living quarters and the dutiful wife hastened to point out the misery of their existence. She showed the trooper her dwindling food supply and she pointed out the cracks in the sides of the wooden walls. She said she had five children.

Family after family was visited. Their stories were the same. Cramped living quarters! Ragged clothing! Not enough to eat!

"Now do you blame us women for what we did yesterday when that district organizer told us we wouldn't get any relief?" she demanded.

A dejected old man hove into sight.

He said his name was Andrew Siders. He has seven children, five of whom are still at home. Two others are married. One is a miner in the same camp. The other is a daughter who lives in Ohio.

"I had another son," the old man spoke sadly. "He was killed in France and my wife gets $25 a month compensation. She buys needed things with this money and we share it with our neighbors."

No Camera Man for Mayor's Office

The city photographer should get a raise but Mayor Charles H. Kline should not get the city photographer. That was Council's view yesterday when it increased the photographer's salary from $2,000 to $2,500, but disapproved the proposal to move him from the Department of Public Works to the Mayor's office.

"At that," remarked Councilman Charles Anderson, "he takes most of his pictures in the Mayor's office."

"And it would be a shame if he went in there with mud on his shoes after taking some pictures for the Public Works Department," remarked John S. Herron.

OVERWEIGHTED

The weight of five men and a steel girder which they were lifting at the end of a rope proved too much for a plank supporting them over the opening shown above in the top of the new Iron City Electric Company warehouse under construction at Sixth avenue and Diamond street. The plank snapped and dropped the workmen two stories through a bay. They were taken to Mercy Hospital. W. H. Chappel, 833 Tobin street, and R. F. Cobb, 4325 Haldane street, carpenters, were treated for contusions and sent home. Charles Wessell, iron worker, is held with severe contusions and a back injury.

BACK ON JOB

Only E. H. Henderson (above), carpenter foreman, 1202 Fayette street, is able to be back on the job after treatment for slight scalp lacerations. At the hospital, James Guill, carpenter, is still held with a probable fractured skull.

WARD HEADS ORDERED TO BACK ESTEP

Instructions to support Harry A. Estep for re-election to Congress were handed to the ward chairmen of the South Side wards in the Thirty-fifth district by Mayor Charles H. Kline and Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong at a meeting last night in the former's office. All of the chairmen attended and all agreed to go along with the Republican organization slate, on which Estep is one of the leading figures. Those present were Francis E. Kieley of the Sixteenth, Armstrong of the Seventeenth, Thomas Jones of the Eighteenth, Samuel Reno of the Nineteenth, Edward Townsend of the Twentieth and E. B. Birch of the Twenty-eighth. All hold city or county positions.

All of those present, as well as the chairmen of the five East End and Homewood wards in the district have been open supporters of Estep against former Congressman James M. Magee for sometime, with the possible exception of Reno, who not only has been closely allied with the Magee faction in the past but who is a relative of the candidate.

YOUTH HURT BY CAR REPORTED SERIOUS

Struck by a street car in Arch street near Ebony street yesterday, Daniel Gordon, 3, of 1200 Arch street, was reported to be in a critical condition in the Presbyterian Hospital today. He is suffering a fractured skull, probable concussion of the brain and internal injuries. Witnesses told police the boy ran in front of the car.

Who Said Quality Butter?

IT is interesting to learn that for the first time a quantity of "93 score" butter was received by another store in Pittsburgh—about half enough to take care of one of McCann's peak Saturdays.

At the very same time, without a line of advertising on the subject, every McCann patron was receiving "93 score" butter—proof that quality butter is the usual thing at McCann's. So accustomed are we to supplying this high quality butter that we never deemed it worthy of mention.

Whenever "93 score" butter is available, you always receive it here; our policy of quality makes it imperative that only foods of the highest grade be offered to our customers.

During certain Winter months, "93 score" is never available, and 92 score, then the top grade butter, is scarce. However, through connections established for fifty years, we are able to obtain 92 score all Winter long. The enormous volume of our business, our established source of supply, and the premium we pay for every pound, makes our business so desirable that we have first chance at quality butter in Chicago.

Had we cared to keep them, we could display a pile of scoring certificates several feet high as evidence of the never varying top grade of McCann's "Perfect" Butter.

But scoring certificates expire in forty-eight hours—Freshness is most important in butter quality, and it takes a sales volume like McCann's to get the butter into your hands before the flavor changes.

Twenty years ago your mother bought, you now buy, and twenty years hence your children will buy McCann's "Perfect" Butter, which was, is and always will be the best butter in Pittsburgh.

McCann Quality is the standard for foods in this city. Price invariably indicates low quality. There is more health in high quality foodstuffs. Hence a few cents more a pound or a dozen is always economy.

McCANN'S "SHELLWHITE" EGGS are the maximum in weight and quality. Recently a patron remarked, "I have been buying eggs here for 14 years, and never got a bad egg." It pays to buy the best.

McCANN'S QUALITY COFFEES, blended and roasted on the premises, offer the best values that can be produced; McCann's buy green coffees in carload lots.

McCANN'S QUALITY MEATS are increasing in demand and popularity every year, because they are strictly as represented.

McCANN'S QUALITY CHEESE is showing increased volume in sales every month because it is second to none in quality.

McCANN'S QUALITY FRUITS AND VEGETABLES are always fresh. The volume of 21 carloads in a week indicates their rapid turnover.

McCANN'S QUALITY HORS D'OEUVRE DEPARTMENT probably comprises the largest business in appetizers and cold cuts in America.

McCANN'S QUALITY POULTRY is the best the market affords. Price is always a secondary consideration.

McCANN'S REPUTATION is the biggest asset we have, and under no circumstances will quality ever be sacrificed to price. The health of your family and the welfare of your purse is guarded at McCann's. It always pays to buy the best.

350 Consecutive Appearances

Young actress discovers how to be on the job every day

SHE USED to lose one night at least every month from her work. Valuable time that lost money for the show.

But for over a year now she's been on the job every single day, for 350 consecutive appearances in the record-breaking run of a Broadway hit. What made the difference? Such a simple hygiene habit that it's surprising more women haven't found it out.

She takes a spoonful of Nujol regularly for a few days beforehand, each month. Nujol regulates the intestinal functions of the body at times when they're apt to be upset. Helps to keep normal, even under abnormal conditions. Cleanses the whole system.

Why don't you try Nujol, as this woman did? Take it for the next three months. You'll be amazed at the difference it makes.

Nujol can't possibly hurt you. For it contains absolutely no drugs or medicine.

It was perfected by the Nujol Laboratories of the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey). Be sure you get the genuine.

THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH

News From Hollywood Shows That Changing Titles Is Chief Indoor Sport in Movie Studios

By MILDRED FILLMORE

MOVIE titles are as changeable as our Pittsburgh weather. Just yesterday advices from Hollywood informed us of three more title changes. That new Richard Dix effort, which studio publicity agents have been writing reams about for the last month or so under the name of "Knocking 'Em Over," now has become "Warming Up." Neither title would tell much if the thoughtful promotion men hadn't let out the information that it's a baseball story. "Knocking 'Em Over" sounds like anything from a bowling alley epic to a drama of reckless motorists. And "Warming Up," well, it might mean another of those Bala Hula South Sea things of an opera of the kitchen stove industry.

Esther Ralston's newest vehicle, formerly designated as "White Hands," has been re-christened "Half a Bride." There's a title for you. Maybe it's a picture about companionate marriage.

Herr Emil Jannings' latest adventures in Russia, under the reign of the mad Czar, Paul, which Emil's countryman, Ernst Lubitsch, is directing, has been returned to its original name of "The Patriot." For several weeks it traveled its dramatic way under the substitute title, "High Treason."

All the heartaches and disappointments of the movies aren't on the screen. There are many little tragedies—and comedies no doubt—in the real and everyday life of Hollywood. Just a few days ago front page headlines told the sad plight of Norman Trevor, veteran English actor of polish and talent, whose mind, evidently weakened by the strain of make-believe portrayals and distressed finances, suffered delusions of wealth.

And then there is William Farnum. His is a story of disappointment, as poignant as many enacted on the screen. Planning a comeback and cast for a featured role in a Fox special, "Hangman's House," he became ill just as the cameras began to grind. He has been supplanted by Victor McLaglen. The younger movie fans won't remember William Farnum. But to some who are older, he is kind of a link to the past—the pioneering days of motion pictures. Many will remember him and his picturesque face in early film efforts, such as "A Tale of Two Cities," "Les Miserables," "The Heart of a Lion" and "True Blue." He is an actor of the old school. Born in Boston 42 years ago, he began his theatrical career on the stage at the age of 15. He was starred five years in the stage version of "Ben Hur." William is not to be confused with those other Farnum boys, his brothers—Dustin and Franklyn. They too have won note on the stage and screen.

More news from the West Coast is that Howard Hughes, youthful movie magnate and president of Caddo Company, has taken over Ben Lyon's contract with First National. Lyon is reported to have done good work in Hughes' war and aviation spectacle, "Hell's Angels."

In this connection we might note that a lot of the so-called movie experts are repeating their same gloomy prophecies about Mr. Hughes' effort as they did when Fox undertook "What Price Glory." "It is a foolish thing for Fox to make 'What Price Glory' after 'The Big Parade' has stolen the war thunder," they said. Now they are saying the same thing about "Hell's Angels," since "Wings" has appeared. But "What Price Glory" clicked at the box office, as have numerous other war pictures since King Vidor's drama. So we think we'll reserve judgment on "Hell's Angels." And by the way, isn't that a corking title for a drama of war in the air?

Jascha Heifetz played a truly fine recital in Carnegie Music Hall last night. We had almost given up hope that this violinist would ever change and play more humanly; while his manner is just as passive as ever before, while he still seems to enjoy music less than any public performer I know, yet his playing last night had deeper passion that evoked a rousing ovation from his audience.

Heifetz's technique is flawless. His swift bow, unfailing wrist, rich tone, and sense of the full-rounded phrase being a breadth into his work that has not yet reached its limitations. For the Italian classics his very manner is fortunate; his attitude forbids the Spanish music too free rein, and makes the hearer believe he idealizes the tunes and rhythms. For pure cantilena his Chopin Nocturne and Mendelssohn's On Wings of Song, given as encore, were exemplary. For extreme delicacy in execution I can quote his Debussy, and for brilliance and endurance the Perpetual Motion of Novacek.

During such a program I am especially aware of the dearth in newer music for the violin, and of the frequency of arrangements from piano and song literature to fill the gap. Another encore was Lily Boulanger's Cortege, a fine miniature, but this gifted composer died at 23, and no one else seems to be attracted to that type of composition.

Heifetz was especially fortunate in his accompanist, Isidor Achron, whose playing of the Lalo Symphony was almost as enjoyable as the soloist's.

Mulhall in Film Adaptation of Stage Play

The practical and convertible theater at First National Studios will again be put into commission and remodeled for the stage sequences in Jack Mulhall's "The Butter and Egg Man," soon to be started under the direction of Richard Wallace.

In this film version of the Broadway stage hit, which was seen last season in Pittsburgh, scenes behind scenes and others showing a performance will be utilized.

A first night in a nearby town and also an opening in Manhattan will be shown. The excitement attendant upon an initial performance of an entirely new play usually is almost indescribable. Everything happens that can possibly happen as a rule, and these various difficulties will be presented in the picture.

PENN STATE THESPIANS IN PLAY HERE MONDAY

The Penn State Thespian Club will present the dramatic production, "Honestly Yours," Monday night in the Syria Mosque. A number of Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania boys will appear in the cast of the play.

SUN-TELE RAIL EDITORIAL LAUDED

The fact that Canadian railroads are subsidized in order that they may operate steamship lines whereas American roads are really prohibited from operating ships is established by P. H. Yorke, general agent of the Great Northern Railway Company, in a letter inspired by a Sun-Telegraph editorial.

Mr. Yorke presents an interesting tax rate comparison between railroads of the United States and Canada. The editorial on which Yorke commented called attention to the fact that the Canadian Pacific Railroad, which operates both railroads and steamship lines, was a highly profitable enterprise and at the same time is the chief agent for the extension of Canadian commerce to the entire world.

Mr. Yorke's letter:

"I have noted with much interest your article 'Canada Points Way' on editorial page of your Saturday, April 7 edition, my particular attention being directed to the last sentence, where, after analysis is made of the Canadian Pacific Railway's success in operation of ships on the Atlantic and the Pacific, you ask, 'Why should not our American railroads cooperate in the establishment of steamship lines.' I might add that the Canadian Pacific operates on the Great Lakes also.

"It is to be hoped that your article was not intended to convey the impression that American railroads are unwilling to assist in extending the markets for American goods and in putting the American flag in every port, for such is not the case.

"May I ask you a question? Do the American people desire the railroads to co-operate?

"Co-operation is a two-sided affair. Railroad owned ships have been ruled out of Great Lakes traffic, and I believe one of the regulations of the Panama Canal prohibits its use by ships owned and controlled by American railroads. It would seem, therefore, that our own people do not wish railroads to operate steamship lines, while Canada, on the other hand, offers subsidies.

"I might give you an example of the difference in nations — the Great Northern Railway, with some 8,000 miles of line pays as much in taxes as do the combined Canadiant Pacific and Canadian National, whose total milege is about 40,000. Or, to put it in another way, if the Great Northern paid taxes on same basis as do the Canadian railroads, it could reduce freight rates about 9 per cent, and still make the present net.

"But to get back to the subject, does the American public wish railroads to get into the steamship game?"

FIND DYNAMITE ON STREET CAR

A suitcase containing dynamite was left on a Lincoln avenue street car last night. Conductor C. J. Anderson of 912 Mellon street found the suitcase and turned it over to police at the Frankstown Avenue Police Station. A paper parcel was found to contain four sticks of dynamite. The explosives were turned over to the United States Bureau of Mines and police are endeavoring to trace the owner through the clothing.

HENRICKS PIANO CO. RECEIVER IS NAMED

Judge James H. Gray, of Common Pleas Court, yesterday appointed the Potter Title & Trust Company temporary receiver of Hendricks Piano Company, Sixth street, on application of Joseph A. Langfitt, a creditor holding a note of the defendant company for $2,307. It is stated that the company, capitalized at $50,000, has $15,000 worth of pianos in stock and holds $10,000 worth of leases on outstanding pianos. Attorney John N. Benn, who represents Langfitt, says the landlord was pressing the company for the full term of the lease on the company's place of business.

MARINO TELLS HOW HE SHOT SPEHAR

Tony Marino, 29, confessed in Morals Court today to the murder of John Spehar, Butler street saloonkeeper, in Spehar's garage in Stanton avenue on March 4.

"I yelled 'hands up,'" Marino testified, "and Spehar cried out. The gun went off accidentally. He dropped. I beat him then with a pick-handle."

Marino's two aides, Carl Lucas and Frank Skalski, confessed their part, and Magistrate A. D. Brandon held the trio for court on murder charges. He also held Charles Bower, whom the other three implicated, but Bower denied all the charges. Bower was brought to court from Western Penitentiary where he is serving two years for a holdup.

FIRE DRIVES 14 FROM HOMES

Fourteen persons, including 10 children, were forced from their homes early today by fire that damaged two frame dwellings in Merriman street, South Side. The fire started from an undetermined cause in the rear of the home of Joseph D. Rozauskis, at 1811 Merriman street, and spread to the adjoining house at 1813 Merriman street, which is occupied by Michael Hruisco. Both men are married and have five children. The damage was estimated at $500. Both dwellings are two-story frame structures.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

THE FREE BACHELOR

THE Free Bachelor is a product of America.

He is a distinctly American institution, like watermelon and green corn and rocking chairs and chewing gum and ice cream soda.

Other countries may have their stray bachelors, here and there; but nowhere else save in America will you find them by the millions. They grow, they flourish, they flower here, like the maize and the golden rod. They are one with the American Eagle—bird of FREEDOM!

HELEN ROWLAND

In other countries, bachelors are rare and almost always accidental.

In England, a bachelor is usually a morose or pathetic creature, the victim of a bad liver, a depleted fortune, or a broken heart. On the Continent he is a freak; and in the Orient, he is an object of scorn, pity or suspicion.

But in America, any bachelor of over thirty-five is invariably a bachelor by CHOICE!

He is a marital "Bolshevist"—a red revolutionist against feminine autocracy and the tyranny of what he calls the "spoiled modern woman."

He has looked cynically on while other men, gay, carefree and debonair as himself, were caught, blindfolded, backed into the shafts and either broken to double harness or hitched to the domestic plough. He is wary!

He knows only too well that the snaffle and the curb are waiting for him; and he is suspicious of apples, applesauce and sugar.

He builds a wall around his heart, has his emotions insulated, and entrenches himself in a bachelor apartment, surrounded and defended by all the modern comforts.

He FIGHTS—he fights valiantly to escape! For to him it looks as though he had everything to lose—and nothing to gain except a slight reduction in his income tax.

But, happily, his is a lost cause from the start. What chance has a chicken crossing Bigelow Boulevard? Or a "confirmed" bachelor in a world full of women? He seldom dies with his bachelor buttons on.

There always comes "der tag"—the DAY, when he is weary or careless or bored or curious or peevish or sorry for himself. The day when he succumbs at last, to some baby-eyed flapper who calls him "Daddy" and teaches him the latest dance steps. The Day of the Marrying Mood!

Let him flutter gaily on his blithesome way—poor butterfly! For, after all, BACHELORS are what women marry. And the more, the marry-er!

Ever Embarrassed? And How? Asks Fay King

By FAY KING

SPEAKING of embarrassing moments, is there anything more embarrassing than to have something strike you terribly funny when you are alone in a car full of people?

The other day I met a man. I knew him, but I could not just place him. I didn't want him to know that I couldn't place him, so I stalled around trying to get a clue.

Finally he mentioned a certain person. Then I had him grouped, if not singled! I sailed into the conversation and asked him if he had seen Harry lately.

He evaded an answer and soon left. When I got into the car it suddenly struck me that he was Harry!

No wonder he hurried away when I had asked him if he had seen himself lately.

The more I thought about it, the funnier it got. I was laughing out loud. I had to get off at the wrong place to avoid the suspicious glances of those around me!

One of the most foolish moments I ever had was at the office when I had to look up a word I can't spell, and they are many. I looked and looked and looked, until suddenly I discovered I was looking it up in the telephone book instead of in the big dictionary!

I have often been embarrassed to death when, on one of my bargain hunts, I've seen a sign featuring a price that just suits me.

Glancing over the goods I see that some are much better than the rest.

After picking the very best bargain, I find to my horror that I had not noticed the price sign says "and up" in very small lettering.

But I'm getting so hard-boiled now I am never much embarrassed. I buy my mistaken selection.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

U.S. Senator from New York

Seek the Joy of Life in Flaming Health

ONE of old said, "Without health life is not life; life is lifeless."

I saw a moving picture a while ago. The hero of the story contracted leprosy. As soon as he discovered his plight, he hunted for a place to kill himself. The whole scheme of life was dead to the young man. Life could not be life without health.

DR. COPELAND

Of course one can drag out a lifeless sort of existence in the absence of health. But the joy of living is gone when the hope of health is crushed. Life has indeed become lifeless.

Let me say in all tenderness to the chronic invalid that the situation is not quite so bad as Arthur has pictured it. There can be planned a manner of living that will make the most of what is left.

The blind person is happy in the voices of his friends and the songs of the birds. The deaf person can read. No matter what may be the affliction there can be found some way of disregarding it.

When I was a small boy there lived in a house across from my grandmother's, a dear old lady who was bed-ridden. She had had inflammation in all her joints. In consequence, she was crippled, hardly able to move in bed. Her hands were so drawn and twisted, she could hardly hold a newspaper.

To listen to this description it would seem as if this good woman would never have a smile or a kind word. As a matter of fact, I never knew a more charming, sweet-spirited, entertaining and delightful soul. It was a joy to visit her, as I did many, many hours during my boyhood.

But there are ailments which are unnecessary. When they come from reckless living or violation of Nature's rules, we cannot smile over them. Remorse is added to pain, and life becomes a dead thing.

With glowing, flaming, vigorous health, there is every incentive for useful living, happiness and cheerfulness of mind. This is the kind of living we must have if we are to carry out to the full the purpose of our existences.

There are so many ailments that can be traced directly to carelessness or deliberate neglect, that we should be ashamed of ourselves. We are sapping vitality and shortening the span of life by such practices. We are turning life into lifelessness by these performances.

The other side of the shield is quite different. With right living and right thinking there will be a fullness and richness of life that will be ample reward for temporary sacrifices.

For the Lovelorn

M. E. K.

DEAR MISS GALE:

I find myself confronted with a situation out of which I can see no favorable outcome. I am in love with a married man who is several years older than myself, but not so much older that we could not be happy if he were free to marry. His married life has been a failure almost from the start, although he has tried hard to do his part. He has no children to complicate the situation, nor have I in any way been the cause of his unhappy home troubles. I did not come into his life until long after his marriage had been a proven failure. I first met this man when his wife was a patient in a hospital where I was a student nurse. I loved him from the first time we met and he has told me he was attracted to me at the same time. He did not make any effort to see me, but we were constantly being thrown in each other's company, until one night at a dance he told me of his love for me, and also of his unhappy home life, and I also confessed my love for him. We have seen much of each other since and are both very unhappy in our present situation. His position in society is such that he fears the notoriety of a divorce. He feels that in spite of our great love for each other we should best try to forget and make the best of our unfortunate situation. I can not give him up as I love him too much. Why should I not ask him to get a divorce, which would make us both happy, instead of all three going through life as we are now doing? Kindly try to put yourself in my unhappy position when you give me the advice which I so much desire. M. E. K.

You have my deepest sympathy in a most unhappy situation, my dear, but you can do nothing about it if the man does not care to get a divorce and marry you. Can't you see that he places his position in life above his love for you, and that you must accept it? No matter how much he may care for you, you are the "other woman" in the case, and convention apparently forbids him to give you any other status.

Waiting

DEAR MISS GALE:

Do you think five years is too long to wait for a fellow? I love him and he loves me, but this hardship stands in our way. Don't you think if he loved me he would marry me, even though he didn't make such an enormous salary? I am not used to lots of money and he knows it, but, Miss Gale, he is also left with his aged mother to take care of. I do not think that is fair, as his other sisters and brothers married without thinking of her. I suppose he will stay a bachelor on account of her, and let me waste my time on him. Do not think me harsh, Miss Gale, but when a girl loves a fellow well enough to get married she wants to do so. I have gone with him for almost two years, and am not a child, to say the least. What would you do in this case, Miss Gale? I can't give him up, but five years is so long to wait. WAITING.

If your fiance has brothers and sisters, they should certainly share in the burden of caring for their mother, and he should ask them to do so, under the circumstances. I don't blame you for not wanting to wait five years, and if you and he could live on his salary and still permit him to aid in supporting his mother, I see no reason for waiting.

"I know the secret of whiter clothes and there's no hard rubbing or boiling!"

says Mrs. Wm. McDade, 7040½ Race Street

"WHEN I bought my washer the man who demonstrated the machine suggested that I use Rinso in it," says this woman, one of the thousands in this vicinity who use Rinso.

"It certainly is the soap for washing machines. Why, the clothes turn out so white that, in spite of the hard water here, I never have to do the least bit of hard rubbing nor use anything else with Rinso. Even boiling isn't necessary. Yet I never saw such white clothes!

"I use Rinso for everything now. It's great for dishwashing—dissolves the grease in a jiffy. It isn't gritty, either. Saves the cost of a water softener, besides."

It's the suds that make Rinso different! Even in hardest water, creamy lasting suds that loosen dirt and stains. Safely! That's why the makers of 32 leading washers urge women to use this hard-water soap. Marvelous for tub washing, too. Soaks clothes whitest ever, without scrubbing. Saves clothes—hands, too.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

He who would climb a tree must grasp its branches—not the blossoms.—THACKERAY.

RESTLESS and disappointing conditions may be encountered on this day, judging by some of the sidereal operations. The mind may be keen and alert, with an urge to be up and doing, but unless these seething energies be directed to inventive or skillful labor there may be little achieved. In social, domestic or affectional contacts there are likely to be unconventional, abrupt or sensational denouements.

Those whose birthday it is should steady themselves for a year of nervous and restless tendencies, with the mind high keyed, but with little substantial reward, unless the affairs have to do with skilled and unusual occupations. Shun speculation. Personal affairs may assume the irregular or sensational.

A child born on this day will have excellent endowments for ingenious or original endeavors, but a tendency to speculate may prove disastrous in accumulating finance.

Satisfying Results!

—The Musser Studio

Middletown, Pa. — "I think Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets deserve the highest praise for the work they do so thoroughly and gently in regulating and cleansing stomach, liver and digestive organs. When in my teens I was employed where it was difficult for me to answer nature's call, the result was I was troubled with constipation and would at times go for days without relief. As time went on I grew worse and would have severe bilious headaches, my stomach would sour and my mouth and throat became ulcerated. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets and they have wrought a great change in me. I now have no trouble with my stomach, liver and bowels, they work in a perfectly natural way. I am glad to tell this for the sake of others."—Mrs. Cora Germain, 12 State St. (Picture above.) Dealers. 60 Pellets 30c.

CITY MAY BID FOR BALLOON RACE SOON

The official invitation to the National Aeronautic Association to hold the 1928 elimination balloon races here probably will be sent by Council after the regular meeting next Monday.

The proposal hit a temporary snag yesterday when, through the opposition of Councilmen John S. Herron and Daniel Winters, the Malone resolution extending the invitation and making an appropriation of $7,500 to defray part of the expenses, was sidetracked.

Two moves were made, however, indicating that Council is in favor of the idea. One was to send a wire to the headquarters of the association asking if the city could get the races, for which a number of other municipalities are bidding, if the $15,000 guarantee demanded for expenses is provided. The other was to refer the case to the city solicitor for an opinion as to the legality of the appropriation.

The opposition of Herron and Winters was based on the fact that a small admittance fee is to be charged to the field from which the balloons ascend. This matter was explained by Councilman James F. Malone, who pointed out that as far as he knew the fee was to be used to defray expenses, including the amount advanced by Council as a guarantee and by a number of prominent Pittsburgh citizens.

AUTO HITS CAR, 6 INJURED

A motor collision in Munhall early today sent three girls and three men to hospitals for treatment.

James C. Alexander, 20, 519 East Fourth avenue, Braddock, driving a new automobile, collided with a Homestead street car in Eighth avenue, Munhall, at 2:30 o'clock. He is in Homestead Hospital.

R. Hamilton, 20, of 524 Fourth avenue, Braddock; Teddy Kohut, 24, of 208 Braddock avenue, Braddock; Alice Isett, 22, of 431 Ella street, Wilkinsburg; Ruth Homer, 20, of 519 Bessemer avenue, East Pittsburgh, and Ella Rosenfeld, 18, of 208 Braddock avenue, Braddock, were taken to Braddock Hospital. After having their injuries dressed they went home.

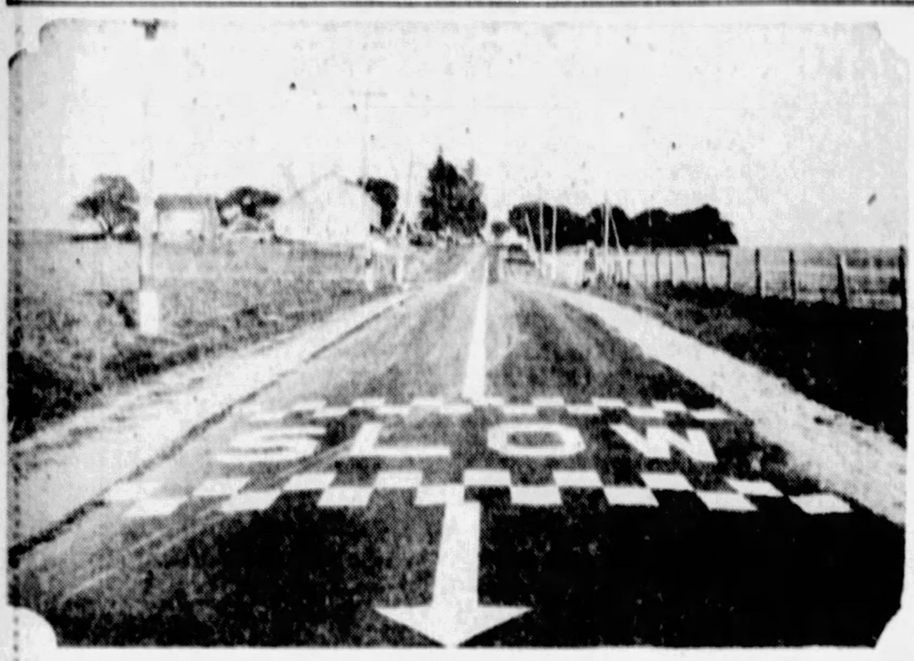
AUTO ACCIDENTS ARE LAID TO CARELESSNESS

STATE CO-OPERATES -:- IN SAVE-A-LIFE DRIVE -:- WITH SAFE ROADS

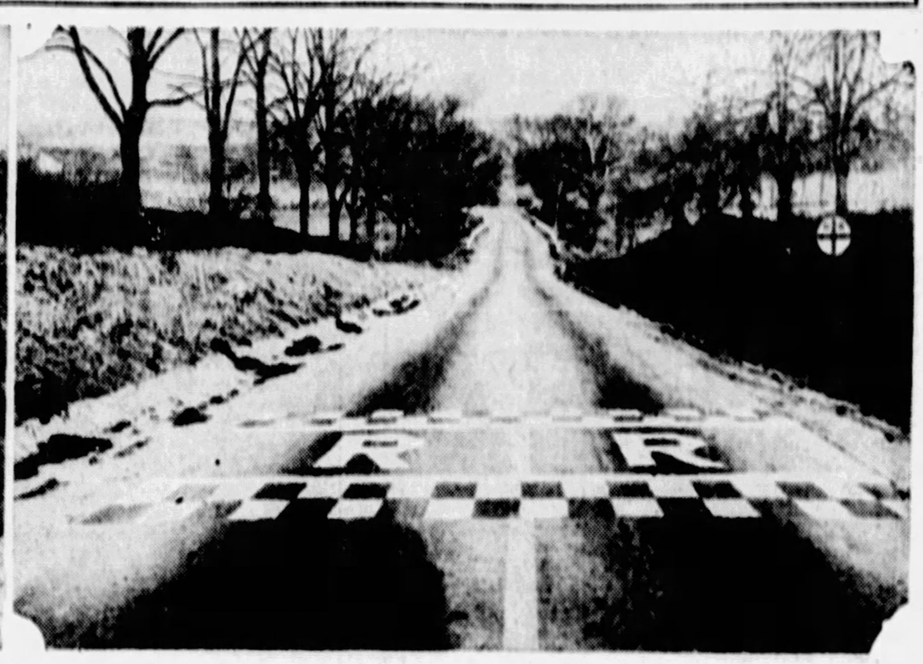


ADVANCE WARNING

Signs like this one, painted on the concrete highways of the state road system, tell of cross-roads close at hand and give the operator time to bring his vehicle to a stop as a protection against traffic which may be proceeding in the opposite direction.

TELLS OF CURVE

Many of the roads in Pennsylvania have blind curves because of the many hills. As a safety measure reflector flashing beacons are placed to warn the motorist of such curves.



TRAINS NEARBY

Railroad grade crossings are gradually being done away with in this state, but many still hold dangers for the motorist. As a protective measure the state paints signs like this one on the road surfaces within stopping distance of the rails.

STATE REGISTRAR ISSUES "DONT'S"

By BENJAMIN G. EYNON,
Registrar of Motor Vehicles, Pennsylvania Department of Highways.

As a result of the study of accident reports submitted to the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, Pennsylvania Department of Highways, under the provisions of the Vehicle Code which became effective January 1, 1928, I believe that the two main causes of automobile accidents are:

THE PERSONAL EQUATION—Careless, thoughtless, reckless ignorance of traffic laws, or their utter disregard.

THE MECHANICAL EQUATION—Poor condition of safety factors of motor vehicles—brakes, lights, horns, steering mechanism, windshield wipers—causing approximately 30 per cent of all accidents.

To offset these, believing that no remedy can be prescribed until the causes of the disease are first known and feeling that these are definite causes, we offer the following "Don'ts" for drivers.

There is a place paved with good intentions, but this pavement is not nonskid, unless your brakes are in good condition.

There are many brands of danger, but only one kind of safety.

It is a poor time to think of brake inspection when one is within 10 feet of eternity.

The lock-step trail awaits the coward who hits and runs away.

Try an ounce of prevention—it's more dependable.

Eighteen hundred and thirty-seven lives lost in Pennsylvania last year—five a day were laid away.

Help to keep the automobile in good repute.

All any bad brake asks is an opportunity to show what it cannot do in a critical situation.

It is better to be sure than sorry—better to be careful than lucky.

The vehicle code contains adequate provisions for dealing with reckless and careless drivers, and it also gives authority for withdrawing the registrations of vehicles found unsafe or unfit for operation, and if the state ever carried out its threat to inspect the safety factors of every car on the road, garages and automobile graveyards would be filled to overflowing.

We can not regulate the state of mind of the man behind the wheel of a motor car, therefore, it seems almost a waste of time to issue safety warnings covering the personal equation in accidents—vigorous enforcement of the law will take care of that.

On the other hand, the Pennsylvania state highway patrol would be derelict in its duty, if patrolmen permitted operation on the public highways of motor vehicles with unsafe brakes, or mechanical defects which make them a traffic hazard.

It follows naturally that the owner who can not afford to keep his car in repair would not be financially responsible were his automobile, because of its defectiveness, to damage another car or kill or maim a pedestrian.

Safe Driver Medalist in Car Crash

Henry Bordicotte, of Lynn, Mass., holder of the city's "safest driver" medal, paid a $50 fine in court in Lawrence recently for leaving the scene of an accident in which his automobile had caused property damage.

WOLVERINE HITS MIAMI TRAIL

According to information received from officials of the Reo Motor Car Company, a Reo Wolverine was the first motor car to travel over the Ta-Miami trail connecting Tampa and Miami—a distance of 226 miles.

The trail was still under construction and not open to the public when the Wolverine made its remarkable trip and frequent stops were necessary to get passes and special permits from superintendents and road builders, to continue on the way. Some parts of the trail, according to the reports, were in terrible condition and almost impassable. At times, large boulders that blocked progress, had to be removed, and many other obstacles overcome, but the Wolverine fought its way through, much after the manner of the wolverine of the woods from which the Reo Wolverine gets its name—the strongest and most fearless animal of its size known to man.

Throughout the trip, Reo officials state, no trouble of any kind was experienced and with the exception of a few scratches on the fenders and a bent splash apron caused by hitting a rock, the Wolverine arrived at the end of the trail unharmed.

GRAHAM TRUCKS SHOW GAIN

Retail deliveries of Graham Brothers trucks in domestic and foreign fields showed sharp increases for the week ending March 31, compared to the previous week, according to statistics compiled at the factory.

Domestic deliveries totaled 1,007 for the week ending March 31, compared to 785 for the previous week, a gain of 222 units or 41 per cent. Export deliveries for the week ending March 31 totaled 319, compared to 201 for the previous week, a gain of 118 units or 59 per cent.

Dealers from over the country are optimistic over prospects for still greater increases in business this spring, according to reports reaching Dodge Brothers, Inc.

Upwards of 9,000,000 motor cars will be on sale in the United States this year, half new and half used cars. The nation already has 23,125,000 motor cars and trucks in use and owes $1,500,000,000 in installments on automobiles bought last year and not yet paid for.

You've got to be good to Keep Ahead in a race that never ends

THERE is no more break-neck race in business than that in the automobile industry.

It is a race that never ends, for there are no keener minds, no more aggressive leaders, no greater courage in trying the untried than that concentrated on building finer cars for you, on giving you more value for your dollar.

To lead in that race for a year is a great achievement . . . To hold that lead for a second year is phenomenal . . . But Reo has achieved it—with the 1929 Flying Cloud.

Making Old Cars Obsolete and Many New Ones Dear at Any Price

In January, 1927, Reo announced the first Flying Cloud. It made old cars obsolete and many new ones costly at any price. For the Reo Flying Cloud of 1927 was a car of 1928.

In appearance, in performance, in design, it was a year ahead of its time.

When the 1928 models of other makers appeared it was apparent that the Reo Flying Cloud had been studied thoroughly.

Yet some cars failed to match it in any way. Others equalled it in one or two ways. A very few, by concentrating on some feature of performance at the cost of others, showed a little better record in the thing on which they specialized.

This Reo knows, because Reo bought the cars of 1928 above and below Reo in price that might be considered competitors.

But Now There's a New Flying Cloud—The 1929

Now Reo offers a new Flying Cloud, even faster, even more powerful than the first Flying Cloud. It is a car that must be called a model of 1929 when its performance is compared with what the cars of 1928 can do.

Now, a race, which the rest thought was ended, has just begun.

Reo can give you a 1929 automobile in the heart of the 1928 season, because Reo is an independent organization and builds only a moderate number of cars. Refinements, changes, new ideas materialize from blue prints into Reo cars many months sooner than do those of other reputable automobiles but made in huge, immobile plants.

Just out of Uniontown, Pennsylvania, is the hill of hills to which motordom goes for the final proof of a car's fitness after the easier tests on private proving grounds. It rises a thousand feet in two miles of tortuous curves.

Proved on The Hill of Hills

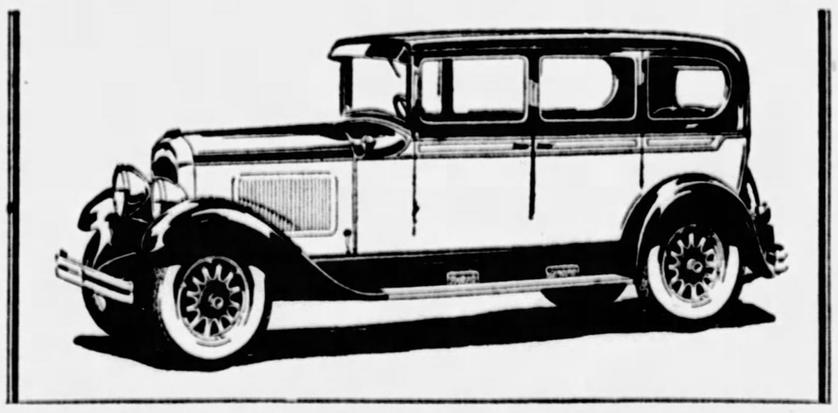
Here Reo engineers tested the power of the new Flying Cloud to prove what 1929 performance means. With the Flying Cloud were a number of the country's best known automobiles. Among them were the greatest selling six in its price class; one of recognized huge engine power; one considerably higher in price than the others. It was to be 1929 against 1928.

The Figures

1 The Flying Cloud swept over the crest at a speed 22% greater than that of its nearest rival, 31% faster than a six nearly three hundred pounds lighter, 41% faster than the car with the high rated horsepower, and 60% faster than the most expensive of the cars tested.

2 The Flying Cloud made the entire climb of 1000 feet in 2.1 miles in 14% less time than its nearest rival, 15.7% less than the third, in 27% less time than the "high powered car," and in 28.5% less time than the high priced car.

3 Even in the maximum speed during the climb, the Flying Cloud showed the same superiority. Its maximum was 14% greater than that of the next fastest car, while two of the other cars showed a maximum 34% under that of the Flying Cloud.



The same Flying Cloud on a level road turned up more miles per hour than any of these competitors. And we're not talking about anything as slow as seventy.

REO MOTOR CAR COMPANY
Lansing Michigan

SEE IT . . . TRY IT We do not know what a new Reo Flying Cloud will do in your hands. For we can't tell what kind of a driver you are. But we believe, after seeing the performance of these new "Clouds" that you'll find it easier to travel faster with greater comfort than in any automobile you've ever owned. If you don't believe us, there's only one way to prove us wrong. Ask to try out a Flying Cloud of 1929. We have one ready for your tests.

"LAND OF SMILES" IN THE OZARKS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 11.—Visitors who motor to the Republican National Convention in Kansas City doubtless will have an opportunity of touring the Ozarks, "the land of a million smiles" and one of the most alluring vacation spots in America.

U. S. Highway No. 71, extending from the Canadian border to the Gulf, penetrates Kansas City and will carry the tourist into the heart of the Ozarks, according to a bulletin of the American Research Foundation.

The main gateway to this picturesque region is at Joplin, Mo., where U. S. Highway No. 66, "the Main Street of America," intersects Highway No. 71. A network of concrete and hard-surfaced roads branches out from Joplin, penetrating every nook and corner of this mountain wonderland. Good hotels and inns, as well as model tourists' camps are located along every trail and Standard and Sinclair filling stations aptly spaced, serve the convenience of the motorist.

The trails skirt the borders of rushing streams and placid inland lakes, in the deep pools of which lurk trout and bass. The trout season is at its best in May during the "time of great hunger" of the speckled beauties, when the insects first appear after the long winter fast. The larger lakes offer excellent jack salmon and channel cat fishing.

Some of the most interesting water trips in inland America start from the little town of Brandon (on U. S. Highway No. 65) in the center of the "Shepherd of the Hills" country immortalized by Harold Bell Wright's novel. The bulletin suggests especially a visit to the battlefields of Pea Ridge and Wilson Creek near Springfield, Mo. (on U. S. Highways No. 65 and 66), and a trip to Fairy Cave, whose main grotto, "the Temple of the Gods," resembles the acropolis of Ancient Greece.

CAM SHAFT GOES THROUGH 49 TESTS

All automobile parts are put through exacting tests. The cam shaft, for instance, on one make of car, goes through 49 tests with instruments that measure as fine as two-tenths of one-thousandth of an inch.

ALONG AUTO ROW

Celebrations and campaigns are the rule Along Auto Row this week. All the automotive distributing organizations are in the midst of their spring sales campaigns, but a number of them are having special sales drives. Others are celebrating the completion of special drives.

NOVEL SALES PLAN

The Steel City Automobile Company, distributor of Peerless motor cars, this week is conducting its second annual "year's greatest" new car sale, during which it is proposed to distribute two carloads of Peerless motors among Pittsburghers. A new merchandising plan, in which the car purchaser obtains all the needed accessories, license plates, insurance and service, at one price, is the feature of the drive.

BANQUET AND BEANS

The Studebaker Sales Company of Pittsburgh last night celebrated the successful completion of its March million dollar sales campaign with a banquet in its salesrooms on Baum boulevard. The employes of the organization had been divided into two armies for the campaign and last night the successful army banqueted while the losers ate beans. Officials of the factory, Paul G. Hoffman, vice president, in charge of sales, and Charles E. Task, general manager of the Industrial Acceptance Corporation, were the principal speakers. Others were F. L. Dennis, president of the Pittsburgh company, and A. E. Richmond, vice president of the Pittsburgh Studebaker branch. More than a hundred prizes will be distributed as a result of the campaign.

RICKENBACKER SPEAKS

McAlister Brothers, distributors of Cadillac and LaSalle motor cars, Monday night treated their dealer organization of Western Pennsylvania to a dinner in the Fort Pitt Hotel, at which Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker was the principal speaker. He predicted many radical changes in traffic conditions within the next few years and a rapid growth for the airplane industry.

GOOD ROADS SHOW

Nation-wide interest is being attracted to Des Moines, Ia., on account of the sixteenth annual convention of the United States Good Roads Association, which will be held in conjunction with the United States Good Roads Show, also at Des Moines, May 28 to June 1. Already many of the leading road developers, road machinery and road material manufacturers are inquiring for space at the show, which will be an up-to-date exhibit of the latest models in road machinery.

STYLES HOLD INTEREST

Buick and the Samson Motor Company, distributor of Chrysler motor cars, a few days ago closed their style shows, but a large number of curious motor car enthusiasts still throng the salesrooms of both organizations daily. The spring and summer fashion trend in motor cars was the theme of both shows, at which all the new color and line combinations were described.

TO BECOME PRESIDENT

Col. R. Keith Compton, of Richmond, Va., will become president of the American Road Builders' Association at the annual meeting of the organization in Washington May 1. The body is one of the largest good roads organizations in the world, embracing virtually every phase of road construction, maintenance and operation. It has five divisions in which its members are classified according to their official capacity.

MOTOR HEAD PREDICTS PROSPERITY ERA HERE

STEEL UPTURN IS REAL AND EMPHATIC

DETROIT, April 11.—A new era of prosperity in the Pittsburgh district was predicted by C. W. Churchill, an executive of the General Motors organization, on his return from that city. He said:

"Business in and around Pittsburgh shows definite evidences of improvement, particularly in the iron and steel industry. The upturn in iron and steel is real and emphatic, and more than merely seasonal. While general business and industry has slowed down in previous years, the most reliable evidence of the termination of the decline and the beginning of a definite improvement has usually been found in the rapid increase in the number of blast furnaces in production. If this rule still holds good, the month of January marked the beginning of business recovery in the metal industry in Pittsburgh, for during that time, a number of blast furnaces were brought back into production. In January as many blast furnaces were lighted as were blown out in the entire fourth quarter of 1927, and the decline in pig iron production which set in in April, 1927, seems to have been finally checked.

"Business conditions in Pittsburgh are largely dependent upon the activity of the steel industry, and if the improvement which has set in in this industry continues, there is every reason to believe that general business conditions throughout this district will continue to show decided improvement."

Car Too Speedy, Judge Wins Wager

CHICAGO, April 11.—During a Traffic Court trial in which William McKinley was arrested for speeding, he bet Justice Charles Irwin $15 that no one could drive his car 30 miles an hour. The judge accepted his bet, got the car going 31 miles an hour and then collected.

STUTZ READY FOR HISPANO RACE

NEW YORK, April 11.—Charles T. Weymann, of Paris, France, sponsor of the Hispano-Suiza car in the approaching 24-hour international match race with a Stutz Black Hawk for a wager of $25,000, advises F. E. Moskovics, president of the Stutz Motor Car Company and sponsor of the Stutz, that Mr. Weymann's Boulogne type Hispano-Suiza speedster is ready for the race.

With the Hispano-Suiza is Robert Bloch, famous French racing driver, who will alternate with Mr. Weymann at the wheel of the Hispano in the 24-hour duel on the Indianapolis Motor speedway on April 16.

The French car, which is generally credited with being the fastest stock car manufactured in Europe, is now giving one week in which to tune it for the race and permit the drivers to become acquainted with the peculiarities and difficulties of the Indianapolis track.

The week of practice will stand the French contestants in good stead, as one of the principal advantages conceded to the Stutz was the fact that its drivers were better acquainted with the speedway. The Hispano is admittedly a somewhat faster car.

Only as familiarity with the Indianapolis speedway is concerned will the Stutz drivers have any advantage over Bloch and Weymann. Bloch has gained fame particularly in the famous 24-hour races at Le Mans, France. In winning at Le Mans in 1926, he established an all-time record for that strenuous course. For the last several weeks he has had Mr. Weymann's Hispano racer at the race course at Montclery, near Paris, preparing it for the battle for international stock car supremacy and for the purse of $25,000 that awaits the winner. Mr. Weymann has had no professional experience as a race driver, but he is one of the best known amateur drivers in Europe, where many of the biggest races are limited to amateur entries.

Due to an insistent demand from all sections of the country, it has been decided to admit the public to the race. However, neither of the individual sponsors of the race nor the Stutz Motor Car Company will participate in the receipts. The ticket sale will be conducted by the Indianapolis Motor Speedway management and by the Junior League of Indianapolis, and the latter organization will devote to charity all of its receipts from tickets which it sells. The big two-and-one-half mile track will be illuminated so that spectators may enjoy the racing during the nocturnal portion of the 24 hours.

Gets 'Tag:' Finds He Took Car Of Another

NEW YORK, April 11.—Samuel Brewster received from the police department recently a summons for parking his car 20 hours. Believing his car was securely locked in his garage, he looked at the machine, examined it closely and became convinced it was not his, but one reported stolen. In traffic court he explained that he stepped into the car, found it unlocked, but did not think anything of that and drove away. His own had been parked right behind. He got a suspended sentence.

PARIS TAXI DRIVERS NOW TAUGHT ENGLISH

Chauffeurs in Paris, France, are now taught "taxicab" English in 20 lessons for $2 40, results guaranteed. "Tip" is one of the first words they learn; next, useful phrases about baggage and destination, and pleasant phrases about the weather.

OWNERS PROTECTED BY NATIONAL AUTO ACT

Since the passage of the national motor vehicle act, passed in 1919, a total of 14,274 motor vehicles, having a value of $11,949,282, have been recovered in the United States. During the last fiscal year 3,000 cars valued at $2,500,000 were recovered.

Summer's coming change to "heavies!"

Poor advice in regard to clothing! But the best and soundest advice in all the world when it comes to motor oils and greases.

The rising temperature calls for a change to medium and heavy grades of oils, transmission and differential greases.

Drive in to the nearest Service Station where AMOCO Motor Oils and Greases are sold and turn your car over to the attendant with instructions to drain the crankcase—putting in the heavier summer grade of oil and changing the transmission and differential greases at the same time.

It's a job that isn't pleasant to do on your own hook—and it's a job that will be done capably and efficiently by the attendant at any of our stations. He knows the grade of oil and grease your car requires to provide 100% lubrication.

Now's the time! Warmer weather is just ahead—so—

Flush Crankcase.....AMOCO Flushing Oil
Refill Crankcase.....AMOCO Motor Oil
Lubricate Chassis.....AMOLITE Pressure Gun Grease
Fill All Grease Cups....AMOCO Cup Grease
Spray Springs.....AMOCO Penetrating Oil
Check and Refill Grease in Transmission and Differential. AMOCO Transmission Compound
Lubricate Universals....AMOCO Universal Joint Grease

Prompt, efficient service and uniformly high quality products at American Oil Company Service Stations.

character of Senator Fess. I received a letter which I still have, over the seal of the klan, telling me that some men had been sent into the state of Ohio with the view of having them besmirch the name of Senator Fess, who was then a member of the House of Representatives.

I immediately called the leaders of the klan in the state of Ohio and informed them of the attack against the then Senator-elect Fess. They called their organizations together and protest meetings were held and as a result of this I suppose between 500 and 1,000 or possibly 2,000 telegrams were sent to me in a protest against the unholy campaign of character assassination being conducted against Senator-elect Fess. Senator Fess was never a member of the klan.

Another instance in which a woman was used for the purpose of carrying out the nefarious schemes was this same woman, called for the purpose of identification "Big Nettie," who had left her trail throughout the country. She was sent to Muncie, Ind., to a man to whom she told a sob story to the effect that her daughter had been kidnaped and, against her will, placed in a Catholic convent in California and had been held there against her will until she ("Big Nettie," the alleged mother) had learned of her transfer to a convent in Ohio, just east of Muncie.

Aim at Catholics

The "Big Nettie" woman was sent with this story of the alleged tragedy because the man was known to be a red-eyed, flannel-mouthed hate-prophet against the Catholic people. He came to my office and told me that this woman was a poor mother who had been shamefully mistreated by the Catholic Church and especially by the convents that had the custody of her daughter. I asked him for the name of the woman complaining and of the daughter whom she said was confined and for what other data he had available. He very readily provided me with this material, and I told him to return in a short time and I would give him an answer as to our course.

Thereafter I got in communication with a friend of mine, who is a prominent Roman Catholic, and after first informing him of my klan connections I gave him all the data that had been given to me by the man and asked him to verify the story, or rather to check it, and inform me as to the true facts.

I told him at the time that if the story proved to be true I would place the entire research of my organization at the disposal of this unfortunate woman and would either recover her daughter or would make it extremely embarrassing for those who held her unjustly. Within a very short time, perhaps 10 days or two weeks, my Catholic friend sent me a very voluminous report, in which it traced the young lady about whom complaint was made, and strange as it may seem, the name was absolutely correct.

Fraud Exposed

It was true she had been placed in the convent in California. It was true she had been transferred to the convent in Ohio. It was true that the mother of the girl had been of the same name as the name given by the woman. It was true that the girl wanted to be returned to her mother, and that the mother wanted to remove the girl from the convent. But it was also true that the mother had a court record and was proved to be wholly unworthy of the custody of her daughter; and it was also true that the woman who was the mother of the girl was not the woman that called on the man, but an entirely different woman.

I then went to the convent where the young lady was confined and took with me three responsible citizens. We asked permission to interview the young lady at the convent and were readily given that permission. We interviewed her privately and I showed her my credentials and explained to her my klan connections, and told her that if she wanted to leave the convent we would see that she was legally removed therefrom.

She then told her story, which was a tragic one indeed, but assured me she had no desire to leave the convent, and told us that the woman whose picture we delivered to her was not her mother and that she had never seen that woman in her life.

Terrorist Plan

The story is, briefly, that it was thought that by appealing to this man I have previously described as a flamed-mouthed hate-prophet—that is no exaggeration of his nature—he could excite some act of violence on the part of the klan in this part of the country and thereby drag it down to the moral level of the klan in the states of Texas, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas and Tennessee, where, as part of their 100 per cent Americanism, 15 or 20 heroes, in their own opinion, at least, take one unforunate, cowering individual into the woods and unmercifully beat and torture him, even to burning alive.

In many instances they even branded them, or cut off their ears and turned them loose as a lasting walking delegate of frightfulness. After investigating thoroughly all the ramifications of this woman's conduct and her claims to the daughter, and getting the daughter's own story, and getting the convent record, and having received a number of vigorous letters from a man at Muncie, I assembled the whole file, marked it closed, and still have the entire paper record of that incident. No raid was ever made on the convent and the people having custody of the convent knew there would never be a raid that had the official sanction of my office.

Klan Gunman Kills

Another instance where they endeavored to use a woman for the purpose of besmirching the names of men, was when they tried to direct Tom Austin to employ a woman and use her in an attack upon me. Mr. Austin very pointedly and emphatically refused to do so. Therefore they arranged to assign Mr. Austin to duty in either New Jersey or lower New York, I am not certain just now where they sent the gunman to kill Tom Austin.

Austin obeyed the assignment and went to a designated point, and very shortly after he arrived, the gunman stationed there with instructions to kill Austin, met Mr. Austin on the street and began firing at him. Austin returned the fire and both men fell dead, neither of whom ever told their stories. Thereafter I learned of the death of Austin and learned that the corpse was being held without anyone to accompany it.

I retired in one of the hotel rooms, the number of which I do not at this time recall. Shortly after I retired I was awakened by a noise that sounded like the whole building was being torn down. I got up and found two bellboys and two men dressed in policemen's uniforms in my room and no apparent explanation for their presence. One of them had a bottle of liquor. What occurred the next few minutes I never did know. One of the bellboys returned to consciousness that afternoon about 2 o'clock in a Columbus hospital, and the other was off duty presumably suffering from some wound inflicted on his head with a blunt instrument.

I can give no further details of this affair except that I was arrested ostensibly on the charge of disturbing the peace, taken to police headquarters and detained for several hours ostensibly for the purpose of placing charges against me, but none were ever made.

Later, they claimed I had been banished from the Ku Klux Klan as a result of this incident, and said there had been a woman in my room at the time. If there was a woman present she was dressed in men's clothes and took her turn with the men in the somewhat rough and tumble affair that followed my awakening.

Then another instance where they attempted to use a woman for the purpose of besmirching the character of men is in my own case where on or about the fifteenth day of May, 1924, they sent a young lady to my office who gave her name as McAvoy, I believe, or McVey, I don't recall the exact name.

She told me a tragic story of the cause of her condition and asked me if I would not render her some aid in her predicament. I was very much impressed with her story and felt the keenest sympathy for her. I immediately called up a lady with whom I was acquainted and asked her to come to my office where I informed her of the condition of the young lady. She agreed to take care of the young lady and I agreed to defray the expense thereof.

Plot Exposed

When the Miss McVoy or whatever her name was learned that I had made this arrangement to take care of her she seemed to resent it and said she expected to be taken to my home and there taken care of. I was somewhat surprised and rather bluntly informed her that I was not in the habit of using my home as a private place for fatherless children; and every kindness and sympathy and the utmost courtesy would be shown her if she submitted to the maintenance over her by the lady whom I had called; that if she was not interested in that proffer of friendship, we in turn would not manifest any further interest in her.

She finally accepted the offer, but in a short time disappeared. I learned that condition was feigned and that her story was false. Since that time she had made an affidavit asserting that she has been employed to get into my home on the pretext of approaching motherhood and thereafter file a civil law suit accusing me of being responsible.

In the affidavit she says she is acting without duress, without promise of emolument, but under the whip of an angry conscience that accused her of participating in things that have since become repulsive.

TELLS OF "PURPLE ROBE"

MRS. PEARL CANTY

The fair sex came into its own in the internal battle which the Ku Klux Klan is waging in Federal Court, when Mrs. Pearl Canty, Philadelphia, told the story of the "Purple Dragon," an organization of klansmen within the klan. She told how 30 of the members interrupted a Philadelphia church service when clad in their regalia, "purple robes," and carrying swords.

Seize Ale Billed As Compressors in B. & O. Car

Canadian ale valued at $9,000 was seized last evening by prohibition agents in a freight car on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Elmwild, Jack Ferraro of 411 Emerson street, Aspinwall, and Henry Brown of Middle street, Glenshaw, who were said to have driven to the freight car in a motor truck, were arrested.

The shipment consisted of 500 24-pint boxes and had been billed as "Air Compressors."

Sophisticated Kids of Fifteen

CHAPTER LV.

WE LAND at Bombay, deposit our belongings at the hotel, and start out to see the sights. We need not move a foot: there are sights all around us. All is new; nothing seems like home. The very atmosphere has a peculiar odor, a different feel. The sun is not the same.

GEORGE A. DORSEY

The houses, trees, birds, shops, signs, noises, voices, cries, cattle, carts, carriages, trams, are different. Swarms of human beings unlike any that we know; different in face, build, gait, dress, coiffure, foot and head gear, and personal adornment.

Bombay is a new world. Nothing in our past experience has prepared us for it. Suppose we have come to settle down in Bombay? We realize that we have much to learn—more than we can realize at first. We do not know how to act. Why does that man stare at me that way? What is the meaning of such behavior? We have no ready-made behavior by which we can adjust ourselves to their behavior.

Even the flies, bugs and insects are different. How are we to know which are harmful or dangerous? At the edge of a park we meet a little green snake. It appears harmless; it may be deadly poisonous. How can we know?

How do we? How do we know the world outside our skin?

We enter the native market. Piles of strange vegetables and fruits. But nothing that we know. We see only certain shapes, sizes, colors. But what are they inside—sweet, bitter, mushy, hard, juicy? We do not know them. Our mouth does not water. Suddenly we espy a box of peaches. Our mouth waters now. We have a very clear knowledge of peaches. A rat runs out; we jump back. We have not seen a rat for 40 years but we have not forgotten rats; nor that a rat is not to be caught with the bare hands as a rabbit may be.

Exploring and Learning

The first rat we met bit us; the first rabbit we met we ate. I know more now about rats than the mere fact that they are ugly and are to be killed only at a safe distance, and about rabbits than that they are harmless, defenseless, nice and good to eat. But there was a time when "rat" meant no more to me than "hat"; or "rabbit" than "Babbitt"; a time when neither a rat nor a rabbit meant more than something which could stimulate my eye and provoke my reaching for it.

Because we are impelled to reach, and when within reach explore, and because things either bite us or we bite them, we do learn.

The world we know is the world we explore with our fingers, tongue, eyes, ears, nose and all the receptors with which our body is so abundantly supplied on or in the surface or within. We know some objects, beings, qualities and quantities well; some not so well. Included in this knowledge of objects are attitudes toward objects. We learn eventually to let sleeping dogs lie and many objects, persons and situations alone.

Don't monkey with that!

But we do. There is more monkey than rabbit in our inheritance. As a result, a lively boy or girl of 15 years knows as much as the "average American."

"Is there anything that child does not want?" asked the harried mother. The child replies, "Nothing." And the child that cries till he gets it answers, "Why not? What are things for if I am not to be allowed to examine them?"

Always Something New

It is a slow, complicated process, but after the child can walk it goes on at an astonishing rate. Tireless, insatiable, indefatigable youngsters! "If I didn't stop them they would tear down the house and burn up the barn." Why not? They might build a better one, or learn a new culinary art, as Charles Lamb says the Chinese learned roast pig.

Here is a baby. It has learned the location of its eyes, ears, nose and toes, and can reach and grasp and handle. Assume that it has been "carefully guarded" — which usually means it knows next to nothing. Offer it a peach, pin, stick of candy, match, red-hot poker, cat's tail, firecracker; same reaction; baby wants it. It may learn enough in one lesson to alter its behavior thereafter to each of these objects. Why? Because hot pokers, firecrackers, cats' tails, pins, candy, etc., have their own behavior. Sooner or later baby learns that the tail of a cat is not a handle to a plaything.

The first peach baby meets is, let us say, through the eyes. Mere visual stimulus was enough for the first lesson. The peach did not explode or bite or burn. Baby explores further. Peach can also stimulate the skin of hand or body or face; also the nose, the tongue and sense organs in the alimentary canal and kin esthetic senses. By the time the exploration is complete the child knows a peach. Through the responses to the many diverse stimuli a peach can make the child knows more or less of its color, shape, weight, hardness, odor, taste. That it has a skin, that the skin is tough and covered with down, that the down is unpleasant to skin of hands, face, mouth and tongue, etc., etc.

Knowledge of peach was built up. Visual stimulus was adequate to provoke grasping response; odor stimulus provoked another response, and so on. By and by any one stimulus may call forth all the responses of all the other stimuli, because these responses are conditioned. While seeing peach, nose smelled peach, hand felt peach, tongue tasted peach, etc. Until at last the mere word "peach" on an empty tin can in the middle of a desert can be felt, seen, sniffed and tasted—there may be no peach within a thousand miles. The response to the label on the empty can might also lead to verbal response, such as "I'd give a thousand dollars for a peach," or "I wish I hadn't eaten these peaches," or "You are a peach!"

Deep Impressions

The kick-back, the response the object itself makes to our exploration, is not only part of our knowledge, but largely determines whether we shall "pursue the subject further." A child reaches out for a dog's tongue or a cat's paw; a bark, a meow, a bite, a scratch. If bite and scratch are serious, and especially if mother yelled "Don't!" at the top of her voice, we are likely to know barks and meows, and when such melodies stimulate our ears we do not need sight of dog or cat to complete our perception.

We learn Bombay that way. We sample the fruit and vegetables, exchange our "good iron" dollars for their "funny paper" rupees, and take no chances with snakes. Learn to love magnosteens and how to eat a mango. Learn to distinguish Parsee from Moslem and both from Hindu. Get used to the idea of burning cowdung for fuel, and do not shudder as we pass the Burning Ghats. Etc.

We learn life that way—building it up, building it up. We know some things well. Many things we do not want to know; they bit us. We can even land in Bombay and walk through the city concerned only as a dog would be; in which case there would be other dogs, cats, places for food and drink and sleep, and endless things to be avoided lest one get run over.

Lindy Slipping, Takes Girls For Ride

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., April 11.—(AP.)—That Santa Barbara girls were being favored by Col. Charles Lindbergh and that he was not as girl-shy as usually indicated, was evidenced here yesterday. Lindbergh was host to a bevy of the fair sex at Carpinteria, adjoining resort where his new monoplane is hangared, and made several flights, each time accompanied by a feminine group.

The famous young aviator seemed to be enjoying himself, his much photographed smile being much in evidence.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

JACK SIMONS, who used to chase fire trucks, patrol wagons, and ambulances, in the role of police reporter, is now one of the theatrical entrepreneurs of the city, having much to do with those gallant and courteous and perfectly grand ushers who escort you, amid divers salutes, to your chair. He reports the customers seem to like the great and solemn attention paid them by the ushers. After we had told him that after getting 18 salutes in the foyer of one of our movie palaces we had to find our own chair, Jack was completely nonplussed. "Thank Heaven," Jack said with a shudder, "that didn't happen in my theater."

WE HAVE always felt that too little attention is paid the ushers when they unfurl their capes, stand at attention, and salute the customer. The customer should return the salute. In fact, we did this very thing, and the usher seemed to like it. One improvement in this connection might be achieved. It would be real swell, for instance, if the usher upon saluting the customer would say: "Good Evening, Admiral," with the customer returning the salutation by saying: "Good evening, my good man. Ah, Jenkins, how long have you been with me now?"

AT THE risk of being accused of being his Pittsburgh representative on public relations, which is another way of saying "press agent," we would like to give Jim Corbett another hand on the talk he gave yesterday at the luncheon of the Pittsburgh Advertising Club. Men like Joe Taggart, John Doyle, Arch Miller, Jack Wright, Dick Smith, John Vickerman, Tom McCreery, Narb Moll and many others sat spell-bound while Corbett told of his romantic and historic encounter with Sullivan.

CORBETT, by the way, told us confidentially and we hope you won't let it go any further, that he got $10,000 for magazine publication of his story: "The Roar of the Crowd," which later was published in book form.

Recent perusal of detective and mystery stories leads to the belief that the authors of these stories may affect the architecture of the country in a serious way. If the stories keep on starting out, for instance, with the body being found in the library, where all the servants and relatives are assembled to answer the questions of the front office men, there soon will grow up a prejudice against libraries and architects will not include such space in their plans. Now and then an author shows originality by having the corpse in the kitchen, pantry, or dining-room, but there is a decided trend in favor of the library in this connection. In fact, some of the thrillers are so realistic that every time we leave the room where we keep our few books, we expect a flashing dagger to fly through the air just as we turn off the lamp. Statistics likely show that most of the deaths in novels occur just that moment when a man puts his hand on the button to turn off the light.

JOE RIGBY dropped in to tell about a big fish he had seen in the Highland Park Lake. We were tempted to ask him if it was wearing boxing gloves, for an affirmative answer would have indicated Joe had his old indigestion back again, but he said this was on the level. Further, he said the fish is very friendly and comes close to the shore where visitors to the lake offer it food.

JERRY The Epic of a Girl Who Had to Wait. by Elenore Meherin

Jerry Hears That Mary Eunice Is to Back Saxon to Win the $10,000 Prize

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Jerry King, good looking, charming and nineteen, falls in love with Saxon Rhodes, a young architect. Marza, her fascinating mother, warns her that idealists like Saxon make poor husbands. When he goes abroad to study, Jerry promises to wait for him. Jerry agrees to wait three years longer. She wonders whether Saxon loves her as completely as she loves him. Saxon's attention to Ora Pringle gives Jerry a pang of jealousy. They attend a week end party where things start to happen. She decides to give Saxon up. She discovers that Marza has another daughter of whose existence her husband had been ignorant. Stephanie, Marza's daughter who was very ill, recovers and they go back home and Jerry finds life one trial after another with Saxon.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"THE most interesting part of the Taylor affair isn't the alimony," said Mary Eunice, "nor is it poor Edith's penury.

"It's Hope Bradford and Jane Burke. They're neck and neck, and the race has two months to run. I wonder which will lead Bud to the altar when his final decree is granted?

"What do women see in Bud Taylor—homely, uncouth fellow? I sat across from him at dinner the other night and was almost carried out each time the fork proceeded to his mouth. I finally asked why he didn't get a steam shovel," said Mary, recalling her bon mot with pride. "What attraction has a man like that, I ask?"

"Sit next to him, not across. Talk to him for awhile. What attraction has a man like Hobart Williams? Why do women go crazy over a runt like him and leave a magnificent fellow like Rob Ashe unclaimed?"

They fell immediately into a heated discussion of the sex appeal of the various men they knew—the way of it—also its quality and quantity.

They compared Hobart Williams, Rob Ashe, Red Porter, Saxon and John.

Hobart Williams, who was short and bull-necked, was voted the possessor supreme of that "intangible something" which brings women chastened and otherwise to their knees.

John came second—Saxon was a doubtful third.

"He's too sarcastic," said Nellie Spears. "He makes you uncomfortable."

"No," said Mary, "the reason is deeper. Hobart attracts more women because more women attract him. Saxon doesn't really care for the mere woman of it. He has to be intrigued by a personality before he bothers to be interesting."

"But Hobart loves all women. He couldn't talk to a washwoman without making her feel a queen. He'd really be interested in bringing a flush to an old woman's eyes. He loves the game for itself. And if he were in heaven he'd try to intrigue the angels. He can't help it.

"Saxon's hold on the woman he wants to hold would be deeper than Hobart's."

"So that's that!" thought Jerry, noting Mary's slim crossed legs and the gleam of white skin through the chiffon inches and inches above her knees.

Jerry and Sylvia walked home together.

"Saxon is in deep with Mary Eunice," said Sylvia, the sea-gray eyes wide open now and regarding Jerry quietly.

"Seems so. Why do you say she's stupid? I thought that comparison between Hobart and Saxon rather incisive."

Sylvia gave a droll smile: "Mary's a good rememberer. She culls a phrase from me, a phrase from you and flings it back in your teeth as her own. She brought up the subject of man's attraction one day while she was posing. If I don't do her wrong, she was quoting me. Only I gave it more of a flourish and went into the subject in convincing detail. Mary's a poser—she's a fake. You'll soon find out."

"But she seems to get by with rather intelligent men."

"That's easy. She's good-looking, enormously conceited and pleasantly dumb. No man can resist this triumvirate of female charm.

"There's only one combination that beats it—beauty, intelligence and real, born-in-the-marrow 'it.' Where and how often do you meet the woman with these qualities blended in right proportion?

"How often do you meet the person, whether man or woman, who is natively attractive? The person who by merely sitting in a room without opening eyes or lips, would yet make their appeal felt?

"Real sex charm is this kind of unconscious emanation like the perfume from a flower. And it's rare as snow on a sunflower.

"Marza has it. She's a shining example of what I mean." Sylvia turned with an abrupt, appraising look at Jerry.

"In lesser degree, you've got it."

"Then your theory's all wrong, Sylvia. My combination, whatever it is, lost out to Mary Eunice."

"You didn't want him. That is, you didn't want him as he is or as he is becoming. You didn't lose out to Mary Eunice, but to an army—the gin-swigging gent and the gold-digging dames. Oh, land of the free and home of the brave!

"Wasn't it rich to hear the kept ladies talking about their keepers? And prating of freedom! Free to starve if papa or hubby ever decide to cut them loose.

"Is Saxon engaged to Mary?"

"I don't think so."

"He must be," insisted Sylvia, unaware of the jolt she was handing Jerry. "He must be or he wouldn't have fallen for her proposition."

"I didn't hear her proposition," said Jerry, tightening. "You know, of course, that he's out for that Melhurst University competition?"

"Yes. There's an award of $40,000 for the winning plans. And some second prize. He told me of it. I thought it great that he was going to try."

"Well—it takes months and months of work to enter a competition like that . . . mapping out the whole building scheme. And it costs thousands of dollars.

"Mary Eunice, as I understand, is going to back him. Mary may be dumb, but she's never disinterested. If she's backing him, she's getting him."

CHAPTER XLVIII.

"WHY should Mary Eunice back him?" asked Jerry with sharp matter-of-factness. "What's the matter with his uncle?"

"He's tied up with some big residence tract that's to rival Beverly Hills, so I understand. That's why Paul has gone to Los Angeles and sent Saxon back here. It's quiet in town, so Saxon has time to go out for this prize. If he wins it, his fortune is made."

"Did Mary Eunice tell you all this, Sylvia?"

"Not in so many words. But she's been after John to urge Saxon to enter the competition. But John knew Saxon didn't have the necessary money. Anyway, men mind their own business.

"Then one day Mary came for a sitting. She was exceedingly spiffed and began to boast. She got quite sentimental and said she was going to make Saxon the greatest architect in the country. He had the stuff and she was going to bring it out. The winning of the Melhurst prize would be the beginning of it. 'I've finally won him over to that,' she said, 'I'm staking him. A girl can do anything she wants with a man when's he's mad for her.'"

"You think, Sylvia, that Saxon will take money from Mary Eunice?"

"Don't say it so badly. I think Mary Eunice is going to finance him. And he thinks it a straight business proposition and probably counts on paying interest. In a dozen ways he can justify himself. He's been aching to enter this competition. Months ago, while you were away, he was planning on it. He tried to get Paul interested. But Paul was too heavily involved in the south. Saxon told John he had a miracle of a plan and was wild to develop it. When an idea gets hold of you like that, you know what a torment it is till you've expressed it. And you'll do almost anything for the chance.

"Even at that, I don't think Saxon would have fallen for Mary's proposition unless he's engaged to her. In that case he probably figures it's for their mutual glory and she has a right to stake him. She would have."

"I'm sure he's not engaged to her," said Jerry slowly; "sure of it!"

"He must be. Or he couldn't be so blind as to involve himself in a compromising position with a girl like Mary Eunice. He knows she's in love with him. He'd certainly be aware of all the nasty angles to an affair of this kind.

"Suppose he doesn't win the prize? And is obligated to her for thousands of dollars? She'd taunt him about it. She'd hold it over him like a whip. She'd force him to anything she wanted. And if he spurned her then, after taking all this money which he can't return—well, don't you thing Saxon would figure that all out?"

"No," said Jerry slowly, "he wouldn't. You're presuming that men see through an attractive woman like a woman does. You're discounting entirely Mary's charm. Do you think Saxon thinks her a faker? A poser? An adventuress out to get him?

"Why, he thinks her a sweet, lovable, very young girl wrongly treated by the scamp who married her.

"And he believes that she's honestly and unselfishly interested in his future. And he can take money as a loan on a purely business basis—take it from Mary Eunice with no more strings than he would take it from a bank."

"Then," said Sylvia shortly, "someone ought to tell him."

"And you think that someone should be I?"

"Yes! At any rate," said Sylvia, swinging along with her proud, virile air of a young goddess, "if I loved a man, I'd fling my own pride to the winds and save him from a mess like this is sure to be. A worse mess if he's really infatuated and plans on marrying her.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife" By Adele Garrison

Madge and Mary Agreed That Miss Lincoln and Jackson Are Playing Parts

I LOOKED at Mary Harrison with exasperation mingled with my amusement at her nonchalant, even callous attitude toward Noel Veritzen's devotion to her, and her announcement that when he "got over his peeve" he would be ready to have her "make it up to him." I knew she was fully justified in her assumption, but it irritated me nevertheless.

"Do you know what your Uncle Dicky would call you?" I asked.

"Sure," she returned, promptly. "A conceited little devil. You ought to pay me something for saying that, Auntie Madge. It's what you're yearning to call me, only you're too lady-like."

She grinned at me knowingly, and I capitulated.

"There's only one thing I 'ought' to do," I said laughing, "and that's to take you over my knee and slipper you soundly. But as that isn't quite practicable—although I warn you that it's possible, and that also like 'Egbert' of 'Red Gap' I can be pushed just so far—we'll shelve the subject of your admirers for a while and I'll remind you that you haven't yet repeated to me the conclusions about Miss Lincoln you've already jotted down in that notebook of yours, and added the ones you set down tonight."

She flushed again, this time a bit resentfully, and I realized, too late, that she probably thought I meant humorously my wholly innocent reference to the notebook in which she conscientiously jots down all her impressions of people and events. With a mental anathema at my own clumsiness, I hastily made the only amends possible.

"I've conned this affair over so much," I said casually, with apparent ignorance of her perturbation, "that I'm beginning to mistrust my own judgment. I need a fresh viewpoint, and I don't know anyone possessing better powers of observation than yours. As I told you when we spoke of Miss Lincoln and Mr. Jackson awhile ago, I bow to your intuition."

I had spoken but the truth, only, of course, I might, with equal veracity, have added that Mary's youth and taste for melodrama sometimes clouded the really acute perceptions which were indisputably hers. Moreover, I had accomplished my end for her chagrin vanished promptly, and there was distinct pleasure in the grin she flashed at me.

"Thanks for the buggy-ride," she said, "and I'll gladly repeat all I've noticed about her. If they agree with your impressions of her, I shall be very proud, for, honestly, Auntie Madge, you're about the foxiest thing I know."

"Taking that for granted," I gibed "let us get on with our comparisons."

"In the first place," she returned promptly "we agreed, I believe, that neither Miss Eleanor Lincoln, nor her relatives are Americans. They are natives of some European country, and they have taken the name, Lincoln, because they think it is typically American."

She paused and looked at me. I nodded in approval of her first point, and she went on.

"Second, the Lincoln dame is an old friend of Mr. Jackson—I'll bet that isn't his name, either, for he's the same kind of foreigner that she is—and that dog, Fedor, is her own pet that for some reason accommodating Mr. Jackson has been carting around the country."

"I agree with you again, Mary," I said.

"And, of course," she continued, "that business of her fainting tonight because an owl hooted was all mince pie or whatever nightmares are made of. She fainted all right, but it was a two-legged owl that hooted, with a nice red beard."

NO DANDRUFF NOW

This matter of keeping hair free from dandruff is neither the complicated nor expensive one that most women consider it. Usually the trick can be done by regular shampooing and the systematic use of Listerine, the safe antiseptic.

At the first sign of dandruff, you simply douse Listerine on the scalp full strength, and with the fingers, massage the scalp vigorously forward and backward, then up and down. In a surprisingly short time you will be delighted with results. We have hundreds of unsolicited letters testifying to the success of Listerine in checking dandruff. Women Win

New charm, new beauty by a morning drink

Do you realize how much beauty, how much charm depends on inner cleanliness?

Do you know how poisons and wastes in the system affect your complexion, your fitness, your vivacity?

Then do this in the morning—or any time—when you know that poisons need elimination. Drink a glass of water, hot or cold. Add a little "Eposnade." It will make a sparkling drink.

The effect is to flush the intestines in a way pleasant, prompt and gentle. Results usually appear in an hour. And they come from the acids of lemon and grape.

Don't wait for delayed effects. Keep at your best. Correct wrong conditions quickly.

Let a trial of "Eposnade" show what this means to you. Get a small quantity at small cost, at your druggists.

MEAT DEALERS STRESS NEED OF UNION

Co-operation by the 50,000 independent meat dealers of the United States was the keynote of addresses last night at an open meeting of members of the Retail Meat Dealers' Association of Allegheny County. About 500 dealers attended the gathering at Moose Temple, 625 Penn Avenue.

Gus Rohrmann, president of the county association, said there were approximately 60,000 chain stores in the country handling meats and to meet this competition the independent dealers should be organized.

Among other speakers were Attorney Gregory Zachovich of Homestead, Edward Tabor of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, and William Smedley of Philadelphia, secretary of the state association. The state secretary said that with co-operation between packers and independent dealers the latter could meet chain store competition successfully.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Post-Easter Weddings Promise Busy Days for Those Returning From Winter Sojourns

APRIL connotes many, many things. And why shouldn't one expect such a temperamental month to have many meanings? Of course there's the old, old meaning of April, expressed in the saying that April showers bring May flowers. And then April is synonymous with the first hesitant spring days. Of late years April has assumed a new significance—that of bridal things. For many girls have been choosing April dates for their marriages rather than June.

This April there are to be ever so many weddings of great interest. Those who have returned from abroad, from the South, from Bermuda, will have busy days before them attending weddings and pre-nuptial entertainments.

Yesterday and today, with their weddings of note, indicate the trend of these post-Easter days.

Elizabeth Stevenson, daughter of the William McCurdy Stevensons, of Denniston avenue, and William Bryce McQuiston, son of the Edward Curtis McQuistons, were married last evening at a ceremony performed in the home of the bride's parents.

Elizabeth wore a lovely old gown—her grandmother's wedding dress, in fact. It was made of white satin, fashioned with a tight-fitting bodice and a long, full skirt. The low neckline of the frock, so much in vogue in our grandmothers' time, was outlined with lovely old rose point lace. Her veil of tulle was arranged with lace and orange blossoms. With this quaint frock the bride carried most appropriately a Colonial bouquet of white and pink rosebuds.

Rachel Stevenson, who was her sister's maid of honor, was charming in orchid taffeta, made also with a fitted bodice and a full skirt, with scalloped hemline. Sarah Stevenson, also a sister of the bride, and Harriet Barker, a cousin, wore gowns of pale silvered green taffeta, made in the same style as the maid of honor's. All the bride's attendants had Colonial bouquets.

Stuart McQuiston was his brother's best man, and John B. Stevenson, brother of the bride, and Albert Diss of Cleveland, cousin of the bridegroom, were ushers.

Performing the ceremony was the Rev. Dr. Henry H. Forsyth, pastor of the Sixth Presbyterian Church. He was assisted by the Rev. John H. Barker of Smithfield, O., cousin of the bride. A reception followed the wedding.

One of the April weddings has been postponed, and one of the most important weddings of the season at that. Because of illness in the family the wedding date, April 28, set by Elizabeth Wightman Mellon, daughter of the Thomas A. Mellons, for her marriage to John B. Sellers, son of Mrs. Harry D. Sellers, has been postponed.

There is something infectious about wedding dates and engagements, it seems. And moreover such things seem "to run" in families. Not long ago, you will recall, Virginia Clifford, daughter of John McElroy Clifford, named May 19 for her marriage to John Dalzell, II, son of the William Sage Dalzells.

And now Virginia's brother, George Edward Clifford, formerly of this city, now of Cincinnati, is engaged. The Henry Brent Mackoys, of Covington, Ky., have just made known the engagment of their daughter, Margaret, to Mr. Clifford.

After spending several months in the South many Pittsburghers like to visit Atlantic City before returning home. Among those are the Edward J. Schellentragers, of the Schenley Apartments. After spending six weeks in Florida they are now at the shore.

There is to be a pretty home wedding today at 5:30 o'clock when Louise Cunningham, daughter of the James R. Cunninghams, of Ripley street, will marry Ernest R. Genter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore L. Genter, of Paris, France. The Rev. H. T. Chisholm, of East Brady, is to be the officiant.

Louise will wear an afternoon frock of gold lace over gold cloth and she will carry yellow roses and orchids. Her two sisters are going to be her attendants, Hillma as maid of honor, and Gertrude, junior bridesmaid. The former's dress is of pink chiffon and she will carry pink roses and blue delphinium, while Gertrude will wear buff chiffon and carry a Colonial bouquet. David Harold Genter will be his brother's best man, and the wedding music is to be played by Mrs. Florence Chisholm Douglas.

After the ceremony there will be a reception and buffet supper and later the young Genters will leave for an eastern and southern trip. They are planning to live in Bluefield, W. Va., and will be at home after May 1.

Several out-of-town guests are here for the wedding. Mrs. Genter, the bridegroom's mother, arrived in Pittsburgh from Paris last night, and among the others are Mrs. Carl Deakin, of Detroit, whom you will remember as Amelia Lee Grant Wainwright, also of Detroit, formerly of this city; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Genter, of Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. William Baird, of Greenville, and Mrs. Margaret Atwood, of Sharon.

This morning, Miss Dolly Braun, of the Ruskin apartments, gave a wedding breakfast at the Ruskin for the bridal party.

An out of town wedding of yesterday was that of Margaret Barry Keith, daughter of the Julian Keiths, of Warrenton, Va., and James Christy Hamilton, son of Mrs. Alfred Reed Hamilton, of Woodland road, which took place at 4 o'clock in St. James' Church in Warrenton, with the Rev. Paul Bowden officiating. Eleanor K. Duffey, of Warrenton, was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Betsy, Julia and Fanny Keith, sisters of the bride; Sarah Gillespie Hamilton, sister of the bridegroom, and Mary Forbes King, Frances Carter, Margaret Avery and Helen Horner, all of Warrenton. Malcolm B. Hamilton was his brother's best man and the ushers included Alfred Reed Hamilton, Jr., Richard King Mellon, John S. Hess, R. Maurice Trimble, Jr., Walton Scully, Charles Thornton Garrison and William L. Standish, of this city; Richard B. Scandrett, of New York; and Lucian Keith II, of Warrenton. Rita and Betty Nash were the flower girls. A large reception at the Warrenton Country Club followed the ceremony.

Miss Anne Simpson, whose marriage to George M. Rowland, Jr., will be solemnized Saturday at 5:30 o'clock in Calvary Episcopal Church, will have her sister, Miss Ruth Simpson, as maid of honor. Mrs. G. Allen Wentworth, of Shawnegan, Me.; Mrs. William Neilson, Miss Janet McLean and Miss Marian Clark, of this city, will be bridesmaids. Stowe Wilder, of Hartford, Conn., will be best man and the ushers will include Paul C. French and Robert W. Leavitt, of New York; Newton F. McKean, of Paterson, N. J.; Philip Shambaugh, of Chicago; C. Gundy Love, of Canal Winchester, O., and Herbert Simpson, brother of the bride, John D. Ritchey, Herbert Carroll, all of Pittsburgh. A reception will follow the ceremony in the home of the bride's aunt in Wallingford street.

Another May date just announced is Wednesday, May 9, which has been chosen by Martha Lewis MacCord, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Charles MacCord, of the Cathedral Mansions, for her marriage to Biddle Arthurs, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Biddle Arthurs, of Center avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Roth, of Lang avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Grace R. Roth, to William C. Kopp, of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Dwight Bardes is general chairman and Mrs. Jesse Zimmerman is president of the auxiliary. Constance Fitzwilliams will give solo dances.

Mrs. Edgar McKean, who is general chairman for the bridge party to be given Saturday afternoon in the Pittsburgh Athletic Club by the Pittsburgh branch of the Washington Seminary Alumnae Association, assisted by Miss Henrietta MacLeod, Miss Gertrude Bradshaw, Miss Anne Kishaddon and Miss Helen Ahlers. Mrs. Walter F. Donaldson is in charge of the candy committee, assisted by Mrs. Clifton Brittain and Mrs. Henry C. Armstrong.

The newly formed Anatole Club, composed of alumni of the Bellevue, Allegheny and Oliver High schools, will hold its first dance Friday night in the Riverview Inn. The club executives are Frank Kunkel, Fulton Shade, Gerald Weyandt and Samuel Walton.

Miss A. E. Grass, superintendent of nurses at the Presbyterian Hospital, is chairman of the reception committee for the concert to be given Tuesday night in Carnegie Music Hall by the uniformed student nurses' glee club. Her aides are Miss Dorothy Pritchard, Miss Elizabeth Buchanan, Miss Lois Ashworth, Miss Ruth Geis, Miss Perne Stewart, Miss Mildred Eyster, Miss Marion Hanna, Miss Clara Mackintosh, Miss Esther Fullerton, Miss Lucille Knapp, Miss Mildred Marsh, Miss Helen Deane, Miss Margaret Pittsley, Miss Alice Hoon and Miss Laura Double. Proceeds from the concert will be used by the nurse to help meet their pledges in connection with the endowment of a nurses' room in the new hospital.

Miss Margaret Clyman is general chairman for the benefit card party and dance to be held next Wednesday night by the Young Ladies' Sodality of the Church of the Assumption, Bellevue. Miss Betty Muchow is dance chairman; Miss Anna Knauer, lunch; Miss Louise Kerr, patrons; Miss Marian Webb, reception, and Miss Helen Malloy, publicity.

C. J. BURKHARD FILES BANKRUPTCY PETITION

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal Court this morning by Charles J. Burkhard, trading as the Burkhard Coal Company and the McCrory Coal Company. Burkhard listed his liabilities at $15,232.49 and his assets at $7,260.75.

PHILADELPHIA CO. REPORTS INCREASE

The net revenue from operations of the Philadelphia Company and its subsidiaries for the year ended December 31, 1927, before retirement (depreciation) reserves, amounted to $26,522,687, an increase of $1,156,882, or 4½ per cent as compared with the previous year. The net income for the year, after all charges and appropriations, but before dividends, amounted to $11,526,096, an increase of $1,416,613, or 14 per cent.

Net income of $11,526,096 is equal, after preferred dividends, to $8.88 a share on 951,967 shares of common stock, as against $10,109,592, or $7.53 a share on 928,869 shares of common in 1926. Surplus after dividends was $4,688,777, compared with $3,096,757 a year ago.

These increases were accomplished despite a slight decrease in the consolidated gross earnings, due largely to the curtailed activity in many lines of industry in the Pittsburgh district.

Three major financial operations were successfully carried out during the year. The Philadelphia Company now is free from mortgage restrictions and sinking fund requirements, and all its physical assets including gas properties, are entirely free from lien. The company's policy of eliminating subsidiary companies where practicable, resulted in a dissolution during the year of six companies. Elimination of 13 other subsidiary companies also was accomplished through the sale and conveyance of all their properties and franchises to a parent traction company. An extensive construction program, carried out during 1927, added many improvements and betterments to the company's system, the most important of which was the installation of additional generating capacity at the Colfax Power Plant and in sub-stations of the Duquesne Light Company. To the gas system was added a large transmission line, tapping new fields in Eastern Kentucky, through arrangements with an affiliated company. Street railway expenditures were confined largely to improvements in track and roadway.

Top Rangers By 2-0 Score

MONTREAL, April 11.—(AP.)—A 2 to 0 victory over the New York Rangers here last night, in the third game of the 1928 Stanley Cup series, has given Montreal Maroons a lead of two games to one on the series and an excellent chance to cop the world hockey honors, as they now have to win only one of a possible remaining game of the two remaining contests. The next game will be played tomorrow night.

The game was packed with action throughout and was by far the best of the series so far. There was scarcely a dull moment in the 60 minutes of play.

The locals had an edge practically throughout. A feature of the peppery game was a fistic display staged by two substitutes, Lamb of the Maroons and Thompson of the Rangers, in the third period, for which both participants drew match penalties.

The Rangers Joe Miller, former New York American and Niagara Falls goalie in the net in place of Lorne Chabot who was seriously injured in last Saturday's game. It was no fault of Miller's that the Rangers lost. The former Ottawa amateur star played a magnificent game between Ranger nets.

Stewart opened the scoring in the second period when he coasted in through the Ranger defense to take a pass out from Hooley Smith to whip a neat backhand shot past Miller. Siebert counted the second goal when he beat Miller with a long shot late in the final session.

May Pair Winners Of Bouts

THERE is a possibility that the Jack Zivic-Jack Katkish boxing show at Motor Square Garden next Monday night will not be the last of the season there, although the weather soon will be too hot for indoor boxing bouts.

It all depends on how next Monday night's battles go, Matchmaker John L. Herron said in announcing the complete card for this show.

If the main bout is a good one and the semi-final equally so, the winners of these two bouts may be paired for another show a week or two later.

Larry Brignolia, the hard-hitting welterweight of Erie, and formerly of Boston, who holds a knockout triumph over Freddy Boylstein and a victory on points over Young Saylor, will be one of the semi-finalists. His opponent will be Phil Scella, rugged McKeesporter, who has been going well. They are booked for eight rounds.

A six-round preliminary between Joe Dudey of Arlington and Joe Pegley of New Castle and two four-rounders will complete the card. Bob Crete of Homewood and Pete Kuzma of the South Side will meet in the second bout and Frank Todd of McKeesport and Mike Hogan of the North Side will clash in the opener. Crete is the middleweight and Kuzma the light-heavyweight champion of the Pennsylvania Railroad Pittsburgh division boxers. Todd is a son of Bob Todd, veteran manager of boers, while Hogan is just turning pro after compiling an impressive record as an amateur.

GOLDSTEIN SCORES

A sensational rally in the last two rounds earned Phil Goldstein, local lightweight, a victory over Mickey Chapin, of Scranton, in a 10-round battle at Newark, N. J., Monday night.

Johnny Vivio originally was booked with Joe Louder for Motor Square Monday night, but he passed up this bout to take the semi-final at McKeesport tomorrow night, meeting Mickey Solmen over the six-round route. Phil Scello and Allen Beatty, Tube City rivals, clash in the main bout.

Emmett Rocco, Ellwood City heavyweight, who was kept on the sidelines for some time by throat

SPEAKING of SPORTS

by HARRY KECK
SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

THE Pirates and Yankees enter the new pennant races, opening today, natural favorites to repeat their pennant triumphs of last year, but each promises to have a real battle on its hands. The Pirates have more clubs to worry about throughout the campaign this year than last, when the field of contenders was comparatively small, and the Yankees do not figure to make such a runaway race of the campaign as they did last season.

As the first cry of "Play Ball!" is heard in the land, a warning shout comes to watch the Giants.

President John Heydler, stopping off in Pittsburgh on his way to St. Louis for the Pirates' opener today, brings word that the Men of McGraw are imbued once again with the real McGrawian fire, the hard-fighting spirit that has characterized the greatest New York teams. From other sources comes the news that Andy Cohen, succeeding Rogers Hornsby at second base, has made the New York team a winner, and there is no doubt that the Giants will not have to make a lone fight against the Western clubs this year, for the Dodgers and Braves both are considerably bolstered and should take many a fall out of the Pirates, Cards and Cubs, the hopes of the West.

There will be no regret in Pittsburgh over any show of strength by the Giants. They always are popular here because of the deep-seated rivalry between Pittsburgh and New York in a baseball way, and there is nothing the average Pirate fan would rather see than a tough all-season duel between the home team and the New York outfit for the honors, with the Pirates, of course, finishing on top.

John McGraw.

KREMER, HAINES MOUND FOES

Center Fielder Taylor Douthit will be brought up from the second bracket to the top of the order, Roettger taking Douthit's place in the sixth notch.

Tommy Thevenow, apparently recovered from the broken leg that kept him out most of last year, will be in the shortfield for Bill McKechnie stated that Thevenow will bat in the seventh position, ahead of O'Farrell, instead of below Bob, which position he once filled.

Bush will stand pat on the line-up announced a few days ago. That means that Clyde Barnhart will be in left field, with Adam Comorosky on the bench.

The Pirates reached St. Louis this morning after an all-night trip from Paducah, where the team performed yesterday. The morale of the Bushwhackers is quite up to expectations, despite the slump experienced by the club in the barnstorming tour. The Pittsburgh athletes apparently figure the long series of losses only as training workout misfortunes. Today is a new and brighter day, so what's the use of lamenting games that do not count in the standings.

Yesterday the Bucs downed Fort Wayne by a 11 to 1 score.

Dempsey Insists He Is Through

NEW YORK, April 11.—(AP.)—Jack Dempsey, arriving in New York today to receive a greeting as noisy as any when he was champion of the world, put the damper on "comeback" talk by declaring he would not fight again "for fifty million dollars."

The former titleholder, who reached here shortly after noon chiefly to pursue his legal battle with his old manager, Jack Kearns, insisted his retirement was definite, but, in the next breath, in answer to a question, declared:

"If I ever have to fight again it will be for no one but Tex Rickard."

Dempsey made this assertion when asked whether he was dickering with any other promoters.

"I'm through," he said. "The boys laugh when I say that, but

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

TODAY is the big day in Uncle Sam's date book. The curtain rises this afternoon following yesterday's start in Washington, on another season of the National obsession, and from now until the final game has been played in the world series in October, baseball will occupy a large portion of American attention.

It is old stuff to hail each succeeding season as one likely to be among most prosperous and interesting in history, and the fans have long ceased to consider such statements by league and club heads as being anything more than an attempt to "whistle up" business.

But when John A. Heydler, president of the National League, made such claims for the 1928 season while in this city yesterday he did so in all sincerity and with the strongest kind of advance dope to back him up.

AND the National League chief was in a position to refer to more than a close race in his own

CLINTON, Okla., April 11.—(AP.)—Andrew Payne, Claremore, Okla., continued to lead the cross-country marathon in elapsed time after yesterday's 50-mile grind from Sayre, but did not increase his margin over Peter Gavuzzi, of Southampton, England, who is in second place. Payne's margin after Monday's jaunt, was one hour 24 minutes and 43 seconds. Yesterday he and

Cleveland Asks Patricks to Lead Bucs

MONTREAL, Que., April 11.—(INS.)—Lester Patrick, manager of the New York Rangers, admitted today that he and his brother Frank of Vancouver are considering an offer to place a National Hockey League club in Cleveland next winter. They would take the Pittsburgh franchise and players if the deal goes through. Substantial Cleveland interests are willing to build a palatial rink if the Patricks will operate the franchise.

OPENING DAY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

ST. LOUIS, April 11.

THERE'S joy upon the springtime air,
Forget your troubles, banish care;
Away with tales of woe and strife
Of wayward husband, foolish wife,
And waves of crime as bandits roam
The city streets, or Teapot Dome.
List' not to pessimistic barks
Or Heflin's assinine remarks;
No more give ear to them that shriek
Calamity 10 times a week;
Forget your sigh and hold that tear—
There's sweets ahead and home-made beer.
Let not the politician's bunk
Lead you to think that we are sunk;
The time is near to harvest votes,
And they're the boys who know their oats.

OH, why be sad—look, shining high,
The baseball sun is in the sky.
And may the echo fill your cup—
Tune in—stand by, please—
"Batter up!"

PHILS DROP PAIR

Puts Faith In Veterans

By ALAN J. GOULD,
Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, April 11.—(AP.)—The big fracas of the baseball campaign that gets under way today may be concentrated in the National League's well advertised pennant scramble but the main drama of the season surrounds the angular, kindly figure of the veteran Cornelius McGillicuddy.

Fourteen years ago Connie Mack scrapped one of the greatest baseball machines of all time. Among other startling moves he asked waivers on Chief Bender, Jack Coombs and Eddie Plank.

Imagine not only parting with but actually asking waivers on as great a pitching trio as any club ever had in the history of the game.

Bender, Plank and Coombs—any one of them worth at least $100,000, if not twice that sum as present-day baseball prices go.

Today Mack's big three are Grove, Rommel and Ehmke, again a southpaw and two great right-handers, but not to be compared as a trio with the famous group that pitched the Athletics to four pennants in five years.

Fourteen years ago, Ty Cobb, Eddie Collins and Tris Speaker, rivals for all-around honors and the stars of three pennant contending clubs, finished one-two-three in the American League batting race.

Today these three musketeers, with the end of the long trail in sight, are in the same uniform for the first time, to mark another dramatic turn in the fortunes of baseball associated with Connie Mack.

The fourteen years it has taken to get this great trio together have taken their toll. Collins already is out of daily harness, devoting his experience rather than his playing ability to Mack's machine. Cobb and Speaker have slowed up, but they still have a lot of baseballs in their bats.

All three have retained their batting eyes even though they can't cover the ground they used to. The figures offer striking proof of this. Their marks for 1927 show an average falling off of less than 10 points apiece as compared with 1914 when they set the pace for the rest of the flock. Here's how they compared.

	1914	1927
Cobb	.368	.357
Collins	.344	.338
Speaker	.338	.327

Tartan Hit By Weight

By JESS CARVER.

BOB WHERLE, assistant track manager at Carnegie Tech, stepped into a fast one yesterday afternoon, or if it wasn't fast, it was at least solid. He was struck on the side of the head by a 16-pound shot and rendered unconscious.

Wherle was rushed to the West Penn Hospital, where he regained consciousness and last night was reported to be getting along O. K.

Elmer Layden, director of athletes at Duquesne University, called his football men together again after a five-day layoff and put the boys through a strenuous session of drills. He paid especial attention to the handling of the ball and to fundamentals.

The Tartan gridders staged their initial spring drill of the season. They were given a fairly heavy drill, but not near as heavy or as strenuous as the ones that are going to follow, according to Coach Bob Waddell.

Coach Waddell split his squad of some 50 athletes into three sections, placing Al Irwin and Paul Allison in charge of two of the groups and taking charge of the third himself.

Over at Pitt, Coach Shea took advantage of the clear weather to give his Panther trackmen a long workout, which greatly benefited the athletes. With the Ohio Relays, the opening meet on the Pitt program only a week away, the Pitt coaches are hoping for an uninterrupted period of good weather.

The football team also was given a hard session by Coach Sutherland.

J. Rodgers Flannery is chairman, held at the William Penn Hotel.

The best of the local mitt talent will perform and the program will be augmented by acts from the local theaters whose services will be donated. It is expected that little difficulty will be experienced in filling the arena with cash customers and that the drive will go over the top.

Men prominent in athletic life of the community gathered at the luncheon were enthusiastic about the prospects of the boxing show, which is a departure from the old method of raising the fund by popular subscription. Ways and means of circularizing golf and country clubs and soliciting school children and others were discussed before the boxing show project was taken up and approved.

James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion, was the honor guest at the gathering. He spoke, along with Chairman Flannery, H. E. McLain, of the P. A. A.; A. W. Thompson, president of the Philadelphia Company, who was chairman of the local committee in 1924; Curtis Yohe, president of the Country Club of Pittsburgh; John T. Taylor and Attorney Ben H. Giffen. William S. Haddock, president of the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U., was chairman of the meeting.

KDKA TO BROADCAST BASEBALL SCORES

Beginning with the opening games of the season today, KDKA will resume its annual idea of broadcasting the major league baseball scores, inning by inning.

The service, inaugurated in 1921, will be continued this afternoon at 3 p. m., at which time, the batteries and early scores will be broadcast. This will be continued every half hour or until 6 p. m.

On Sundays the program will be varied, and scores will be given out at 6:05 p. m., or at the conclusion of the evening program.

circuit when he predicted a season of unusual prosperity and interest.

Of course, the race is the main thing in making the season a success in any league.

If the fight is an open one and the fighting is hot from month to month, nothing else will be needed to make it a great year for the fans and to assure their steady patronage.

On the other hand, if the race is turned into a runaway interest soon dies and the campaign is a flop.

Remy Kremer.

You need not look any further back than last year to find convincing evidence of this. The Yankees jumped into the lead on the first day of the season and never lost it, though they were tied with other clubs for the top on eight days.

It was such an easy romp for the Hugmen that they won out by 19 full games and by 123 percentage points, and in doing so they hurt interest all around the loop to such an extent that only one club besides New York was able to show a profit for the year.

BUT as President Heydler remarked yesterday during a chat over the situation just before the beginning of the big races, there is more than the prospect of a hard, close race in the National League, at least, to lend interest to the 1928 season.

More teams have been strengthened to the point of having a chance to break into the first division, and consequently of having a chance to become a pennant contender. Mr. Heydler figuring that there never will be any great distance separating the clubs in the first flight and that a team good enough to be in among the first four must be considered as having a chance to land on top.

ANOTHER factor that adds much interest is the extent to which the complexions of the various teams in the two big leagues have changed by the trading of star ball players.

There was some wholesale shifting after the season of 1926, but it did not compare with that which followed the races of 1927.

In the National League, Rogers Hornsby, Sparky Adams, Hazen Cuyler, Dave Bancroft, Frank Hogan, Burleigh Grimes, Jimmy Welsh, Lester Bell, Zack Taylor, Jimmy Ring and others, (including Vic Aldridge if he reports) will be with new clubs this year, and in the American such prominent pastimers as George Sisler, Tris Speaker, Lou Blue, Henie Manush, Ken Williams, Harry Rice, Elan Van Gilder and others are among those who will change regalia this year.

Such changes always serve to create new interests around the major girdles, and it will not be lacking in the season that gets under way this afternoon.

PITTSBURGH'S attention today is naturally focused on St. Louis, the starting point of the Pirates, and in spite of all the reverses and tough luck that the Buccaneers have experienced this spring the home fans are confident that with Remy Kremer on the mound the National League Champions will have a good chance of getting off on the right foot and starting the race with a victory, even though he is opposed by such a dangerous foeman as Jess Haines.

Jess Haines.

Kremer appeared to be up against a formidable opponent in last year's opener, too, in the person of Pete Donohue, long a Pirate jinx, but the big Frenchman held the Reds to six hits and won his game in masterful fashion, 2 to 1.

IF we were to accept the dope of recent years, the outlook would be none too bright for the Pittsburgh club today when Capt. Pie Traynor leads his forces against those of Capt. Frankie Frisch.

For in looking back over the records, it is found that the Pirates lost only their last two St. Louis openers, but they have been beaten five times in the last six years they have lifted the lid in the Mound City.

Prior to that period, however, the Bucs won their Missouri curtain raisers five seasons in succession.

It is even Stephen between the clubs in their all-time record for opening games played in St. Louis, each side having won seven times in 14 inaugural meetings.

THE Pirates have not opened the season on their home grounds for a quarter of a century.

The last time Father Pitt's warriors inaugurated a pennan campaign in this city instead of in the home of one of the other clubs in the National League was in 1895. Cleveland was a member of the National League at that time and the American League was unheard of. The "Spiders," as Cleveland's ballers were called, beat the Bucs on that occasion, 7 to 2.

Pie Traynor.

In spite of the poor start, Pittsburgh had, under the management of Al Buckenberger, the best team it ever had prior to the coming of Fred Clarke, Honus Wagner, Tommy Leach, Claude Ritchey, Deacon Phillippe and the rest of the Louisville stars to combine forces with the locals in 1900.

Buckenberger landed his Pirates in second place in 1899, and it was generally admitted that but for the accidental spiking of Connie Mack by Herman Long of Boston, on June 13, Pittsburgh would have won the pennant. Mack, star catcher of the club, was out of the game until August 10, and from that date until the end of the season he caught in only nine games.

Pittsburgh had the champion batter that year in Jake Stenzel, with an average of .409, and also the leading pitcher of the league in Southpaw Frank Killen, who still is a resident of the North Side. Killen won slightly more than 57 per cent of the 44 games he pitched, finishing with a mark of .572.

BILL McKECHNIE, former Pirate manager, while not conceding the pennant to Pittsburgh, admits that any club beating them out will cop the flag.

In a signed statement in the St. Louis Star just before giving his team its final workout for the season opening today, McKechnie said:

"As far as the season's honors are concerned, it is my opinion that the team that beats the Pittsburgh Pirates will win the National League flag. I am certain the Cardinals, barring injuries, are capable of doing that."

DOLDE AND BOWERS LEAD CHESS TOURNEY

The Western Pennsylvania chess championship tournament is narrowing down to be a race between champion Bowers and former champion Dolde, who so far have not been defeated. Last night Bowers won two games, defeating both Stein and Gerber. Dolde meanwhile won his fifth straight game by defeating Isenberg. Gerber won from Erdeky and Maloy from Sieweke. Play will be resumed Saturday. The standing:

Bill Regan Is Hero Of Opening Victory

Bill Regan of Brookline, second baseman of the Boston Red Sox, was the hero of the opening game of the major league season yesterday at Washington in the presence of President Coolidge.

Bill Regan

Washington got off to a lead of three runs in the first inning, but Regan came right back in the second with a triple with two mates on the sacks and then scored on a wild pitch, tying the count and putting his team in the running. The Sox finally won, 7 to 5.

Since the long trek began in Los Angeles March 4, Payne has been on the road 234 hours 54 minutes and 37 seconds. The Englishman's time was 236:19:20.

Neither of the leaders led the way yesterday, Ed Gardner, Seattle Negro, setting the pace in 6:40:20. He was followed into the thirty-eighth control point by Guisto Umek of Italy in 7:10:21.

Earl Dilks of New Castle, Pa., finished yesterday's lap in 14:37:28, bringing his elapsed time up to 341:38:16.

The 12-ton motor cruiser following the runners crashed through a small bridge and tore away part of the superstructure but none was injured and the truck proceeded under its own power. C. C. HEENEY GOOD FOE FOR TUNNEY—CURLEY

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 11.—"I think Tom Heeney, the Australian, is the natural opponent for champion Gene Tunney," Jack Curley, world famous impresario of boxing and wrestling, said here this morning just before his departure for Columbus, O., and other points West.

"Heeney really has accomplished more than any of the other contenders for the crown Tunney won from Jack Dempsey," Curly continued. "He stands out as the most consistent winner in the group from which Tunney's opponents had to be selected. Heeney is a rugged fellow and it looks to me as if he really has a chance in his coming fight for the heavyweight crown."

Local Mill Man Is Given Wonderful Relief by Popular Ten Herbs.

"Although I am 60 years of age, I feel like a man of 20, and I give Ten Herbs all the credit for the great change in me,' was the statement of Mr. James McClelland, 44 Greenleaf Street, Pittsburgh, to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's

MR. JAMES McCLELLAND

Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this popular medicine.

"Before using Ten Herbs I suffered with my stomach, liver and kidneys for some time," continued Mr. McClelland, who is a mill man. "My stomach was badly disordered, I was troubled with gas and bloating after eating. I would have heartburn so badly at night that I could not sleep, and I never had much appetite. My kidneys seemed to be in a very bad condition. I was not able to sit up at times, and at other times I could not lie down. Ten Herbs gave me such wonderful relief that I am pleased to recommend it to all who are suffering as I was."

The demand for Ten Herbs in this city is increasing by leaps and bounds. It probably is the most widely discussed medicine ever introduced here. Men and women of all stations in life are daily telling the Ten Herbs Man of the amazing benefits they have been given. Many claim this great herbal medicine relieved them of stomach, liver or bowel trouble after they had given up hope of ever being well, having tried medicine after medicine without feeling the slightest change for the better in their condition.

Ten Herbs is Nature's own medicine—free from minerals, opiates and any harmful ingredients. It not only tones up the stomach, kidneys and liver, but regulates the bowels and gives the entire system a thorough cleansing, usually making one feel better in every way. Ten Herbs builds strength, adds weight, increases energy, relieves aches and pains and restores appetite and sleep. It has helped others and why not you?

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. Free sample given.

Abolish Seven-Day Week, And Give Paid Vacations.

By B. C. FORBES

HAVEN'T you noticed that a five-day work week is being urged by some as a "cure" for unemployment? The five-day week doubtless will come—in time.

Meanwhile, why not exert fresh efforts to abolish entirely the seven-day work week and the $65-day work year?

The present financial condition of our railroads and the present labor conditions make this a peculiarly opportune time to launch a vigorous movement to do away with this entirely un-American evil.

SEVERAL railway presidents have emphasized, in letters already published in this column, that the seven-day jobs are preferred, as shown by the fact that such jobs are eagerly bid for when they became vacant. A New York Central employe who signs himself "Nervous Wreck," writes:

"Railway heads have declared that seven-day jobs are preferred. The signal men on the electric division of the New York Central work seven days a week, 365 days a year, with straight time for Sundays and holidays. Our pay—69½ cents per hour—is so small we cannot afford to take any time off without depriving our families."

FROM Ferdson, Mich., comes this letter, from which it may be better to withhold the signature.

"Railroad officials claim the men prefer the seven-day week. They do not. They prefer the slightly larger pay check for the dependents in their homes. Pay them a decent daily or hourly rate and they will gladly 'bid in' the six-day run.

"The steam road employes have it soft compared to the street railways boys—43 to 53 cents per hour, nine to 11 hours a day for seven days a week; two-hour split (no pay), and eat when you can.

"Very often when a man plans to take the wife and kiddies out, he is told at the last moment, 'Sorry, can't let you go.' But the group of men who are 'sorry' work eight hours a day, six days a week, don't get out of bed until about 7:30, and home again at 6 o'clock. Maybe they once did it, but if so they resented it, you bet. I hope you print this letter from the workers' ranks."

NOW for the railway managers' side of the problem, President W. B. Cole, of the Louisville and Nashville, writes:

"Of course, you realize that the needs of the public demand transportation service on Sunday; consequently, there is a certain minimum amount of work which must be performed in certain branches of railroad service. As far as possible, the operations of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad are shut down on Sunday in those departments whose operation is not required to keep trains moving on that day. A large part of the employes who perform Sunday service have the opportunity of time off on other days than Sunday. As long as it is necessary to operate trains on Sunday it will be necessary for a certain percentage of railway employes to work on that day, but I am safe in saying that the great majority of employes of this company do not work on Sunday."

PRESIDENT L. F. POWELL, Jr., of the Seaboard Air Line, states:

"This railroad is working at all times toward more favorable conditions of employment for its workers, and is interested in every arrangement, consistent with the necessities of operating freight and passenger trains at all hours of every day in the year, as required by the public interest, that will relieve its employes from time to time for necessary periods of relaxation and recreation. I have no doubt that this is also the policy of most railroads."

PRESIDENT A. C. NEEDLES, of the Norfolk and Western, furnishes this interesting statement:

"Generally speaking, our employes are not assigned to work 365 days a year. Telegraphers, watchmen and bumpers are the only employes affected in this manner, and this is due to a condition whereby service requirements necessitate it, coupled with the fact that such employes are located principally in isolated points where it is impracticable to afford relief.

"Out of a total of approximately 20,000 employes on the Norfolk and Western less than 3 per cent are so affected. I think this condition of service on railroads generally is as low as other industries rendering public service."

NATURALLY, there are station agents at isolated points who cannot be relieved conveniently one day every week. But railway heads possess enough managerial ability to work out a system whereby such men can be relieved for, say, four days each month. Also, the time has come when all classes of railway employes should be given an annual vacation, with pay.

WITHEROW STEEL AND DIXIE GAS STRONG HERE

SCREW AND BOLT IN DEMAND

While two of the lower-priced issues established new high records for the year on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, the general run of securities in the local list held to a narrow range.

Dixie Gas and Utilities common and Witherow Steel common both went to new high prices in the initial dealings, but only small lots changed hands. Dixie has been moving ahead steadily for some time on scattered dealings and at no time has there been enough stock offered on the market to cause a reaction of more than a small fraction. Both the common and preferred have reflected the buying demand, the latter having established a record price of 93 at the start of this week.

Witherow has reached its present level on a move up from around 1, late last year. While there has been no official confirmation of the report, the street has heard from fair demand around 50, ex-rights.

Tone Dixie Gas showed little change, although the stock was in

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

United States Steel Rate Unchanged.

Operations of subsidiaries of United States Steel Corporation are at 80 per cent of rated production capacity, unchanged from last week. Operations which are known to be slightly stronger at Chicago, also works operations for the current week have been to 83-85 per cent of capacity, compared with the 80-85 per cent rate indicating for some weeks past. Pittsburgh steel mill operations are at the 80-85 per cent rate. The average however is now nearer to 85 per cent.

Pacific Gas and Electric.

Pacific Gas and Electric company reports for the year 1927 net income of $10,691,581, after interest deductions, and equal after preferred dividends to $2.86 against $8,859,241 in 1926.

A. P. I. Oil Figures.

The American Petroleum Institute estimates United States daily average crude oil production for the week ended April 7 at 2,850,200 barrels, a decrease of 17,300 barrels from the preceding week.

Relativity in Stock Prices.

In its present mood, Wall street is disposed to make Albert Einstein, formulator of the theory of relativity to matter, rich, says a well known chart. Certain optimists on particular stocks are arguing that they should go up because other similar issues have risen disproportionately to them. Even the famous doctrine applied by the ship news reporters to John Hanson, chief executive of the General Motors corporation was based on the theory of relativity. On the eve of his departure for Europe the executive is reported to have remarked that General Motors should sell its issue on the market if it is to get in line with other industrials of its class.

Seeds of Inflation.

In another industry, there are two dominating corporations. The stock of the other of the two is selling 17 times current earnings. The shares of the other only 11 times present earnings. Between the president of the latter frequently ask him whether his stock is cheap. In the spirit of a relativist, he replies: "Either our competitor's stock is too dear or ours is cheap. The process of bringing securities into line, in so far as it has any rational basis, springs from a changing level of interest and capital rates. The theory that a stock is cheap in relation to another stock potentially exhibits an endless chain of inflation. Unless the price of the standard of comparison is justified by intrinsic value, the whole process of reasoning is fallacious. Unquestionably, a good deal of this unsound thinking has been produced during the recent period of frenzied speculation.

Southern Pipe Capital Distribution.

Southern Pipe Line Company has declared a capital distribution of $15 a share, payable June 15 to record May 15, following approval by stockholders of a reduction in capital from $5,000,000 (par $50) to $1,000,000 of $10 par.

Winter Wheat Condition 68.8 Per Cent.

The Department of Agriculture estimates average condition of winter wheat in the United States as of April 1 at 68.8 per cent, against 84.3 per cent on April 1, 1927, and 84.1 per cent on April 1, 1926. The condition is placed at 78.3, against 86.1 last year and 86.2 two years ago. The condition on April 1 of winter wheat stands at the lowest figure in the history of the Department of Agriculture, except 1917 and 1920.

Electric Power at Wholesale.

A new development in super-power financing was announced today in connection with the public offering of an issue of $10,000,000 Super-Power Company of Illinois first mortgage 5½ per cent bonds. The bonds, which will mature March 1, 1958, are being offered by Halsey, Stuart & Co. at 98½ and interest, to yield 5.58 per cent. The company will use the proceeds of the issue to pay in part for the construction of a new generating station, substation and transmission lines. The station will produce power which will be wholesaled to four large public utility companies. The distinctive feature of this organization is that it is a purely wholesale company, that is, it will sell to central stations, but none of its power will be sold directly to ultimate consumers. The company combines the Commonwealth Edison Company of Chicago, Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, Illinois Power and Light Company, Corporation and Central Illinois Public Service Company. The new station site is located at Powerton, 12 miles southwest of Peoria on the Illinois river.

Penna. R. R. Bond and Mortgage.

The Pennsylvania United States Bond and Mortgage Corporation directors have authorized two stock dividends, payable to holders of record April 1. The company is engaged in the business of issuing bonds, purchasing mortgages in Western Pennsylvania and refinancing them with the United States Bond and Mortgage Corporation of New York. The Western Pennsylvania mortgages are trusteed with the Guaranty Trust Company of New York by the United States Bond and Mortgage Corporation, which issues collateral trust certificates. These certificates are sold against them. The company states that it has sold $10,000,000 of its collateral trust certificates in the last four months. Several well-known Pittsburgh are identified with the Pennsylvania United States Bond and Mortgage corporation. The officers are George H. Wallace president; F. J. Kreis, vice president, George R. Denman, vice president; Harry J. Ramsey secretary and Charles H. Carlisle, assistant secretary and treasurer. The directors are the above officers and Norman F. Brown, George B. Caldwell, Harry C. Fry, J. F. Hartwell, J. C. Gilmore, Jr., F. B. Hollis, Ralph W. Johnston, John J. Koch, R. K. McKee, Jr., W. Masterson, Jr., T. Riffle, Reginald Schriver, E. H. Stoner, Joseph W. Ward, Frank Wade and Edward T. Whiter.

Car Loadings About Same.

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended March 31 totaled 900,249 cars, a decrease of 179 cars from the preceding week, but 28,213 below the corresponding period of 1927, according to the American Railway Association.

Dodge Has Better Quarter.

Dodge Bros., Inc., and subsidiaries report for the March quarter consolidated net income of $1,981,552 after depreciation, interest and provision for income taxes, equal after cumulative preferred dividends to $1.21 a share on 2,435,024 combined class A and B shares, compared with net of $1,545,349 in the March, 1927, quarter.

Nash Net Declines.

Nash Motors Company reports net for the first quarter of its fiscal year, covering three months ended February 29, of $2,604,378 after all charges, equal to 95 cents a share, compared with $1,925,434 in the corresponding quarter of the previous year.

Auto Sheet Prices Drop.

Youngstown reports today said that a near sensation was caused in steel circles there by a drop of $3 a ton in dull finished sheet prices, which fell to 4 cents in a market which seemed firmly set at 4.15 cents. The story is that a leading sheet maker canceled a large tonnage that had been taken at 4.15 cents and found a weak spot where he could place business at 4 cents. Other rollers with ample contracts on their books reduced prices to 4 cents to meet the cut. The situation has caused consternation among finished sheet rollers. In other directions steel prices are holding recent levels.

If You Own Property
You never know when you may have to defend your title against the attack of some claimant. Moreover, a doubtful title makes it difficult to sell your property or to arrange a loan on it.
POTTER TITLE INSURANCE eliminates these possibilities entirely. In fact, the only positively safe title is an insured title.
The cost of this modern safeguard is surprisingly low. Come in and let us explain its many advantages.

BUGS BAER Says

PEARL necklace worth quarter-million berries was stolen while crossing the English Channel.

Those girls shouldn't wear that stuff in swimming.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

It was the property of a New Yorkette. Was snapped up by New York crooks. Therefore, the championship still remains in America.

Consisted of fifty-seven cream-rose pearls of purest ray serene. Nineteen inches long. Its owner intended to wear it around her neck, but now the neighbor's children are using it for a skipping rope.

That's a long necklace for a girl to wear around her neck. You could harness a mule with it and have enough left over to make a whip.

Fifty-seven pearls are beautiful, but give an envious old cat the chance to ask you if the necklace is one of those add-a-pearl-a-year things.

The Irresolute Governor

He Finds Several Reasons for Not Facing the Senators He Accused

One day it is indicated at Gov. Fisher's office he will not have time to go to Washington to testify in the Senate coal probe because he will be busy visiting state institutions. The next day it is asserted he will not appear before the Senators because he does not like the form of the invitation. The Governor does not find it hard to discover reasons to evade facing the Senate committee after publicly traducing it.

Following his attack, Gov. Fisher was promptly invited to Washington. He replied naming conditions that would practically make him an inquisitor. The exchange of missives between Washington and Harrisburg now finds the Governor assured that there is no intention in the Senate committee to exercise supervision over the acts of a governor of a sovereign state and that the Governor will be permitted the courtesy of asking such questions as might occur to him while on the stand. Still our Governor objects and there appears to be no present indication that he will go to Washington at all, until probe is ended.

...zens of our great commonwealth cannot look approv... a governor who takes such a position. They would ...ave admiration for a man who, even though he might be wrong, would courageously assume responsibility for his utterances, while giving any whom he has attacked opportunity to question him publicly.

The people of the state would like to look toward Harrisburg unashamed. Gov. Fisher still has an opportunity to permit them to do so.

Fans' Faith, Hope High As Baseball Sun Rises

The flowers that bloom in the spring, tra, la, have nothing to do with the case of the baseball fan, who today stands facing westward with a hopeful gleam in his eye, a faithful heart beating a little faster in his manly breast.

The baseball season really opens today, with the Pirates in St. Louis, and, while the greater enthusiasm will be reserved for the home opening at Forbes Field a week hence, the fan's hope and faith already are strengthened. Ere the season ends both will be sorely tried, but just now they are at a high degree, warranted by strengthening of the team that was good enough to win the National League pennant last season.

Good fan, keep your courage up. Keep it up even though there be early defeats—the season is long and uncertainty is what makes baseball the greatest of games to witness. There will be mistakes, but they are part of the game. In a perfectly played contest the pitcher would pitch so well there would be no hits, no walks. The fielders would make no errors, and there would be no runs. Could anything be less interesting?

Watch the game for pleasure—not for criticism. And read about the Pirates in The Sun-Telegraph, which will continue to be FIRST with news of the team.

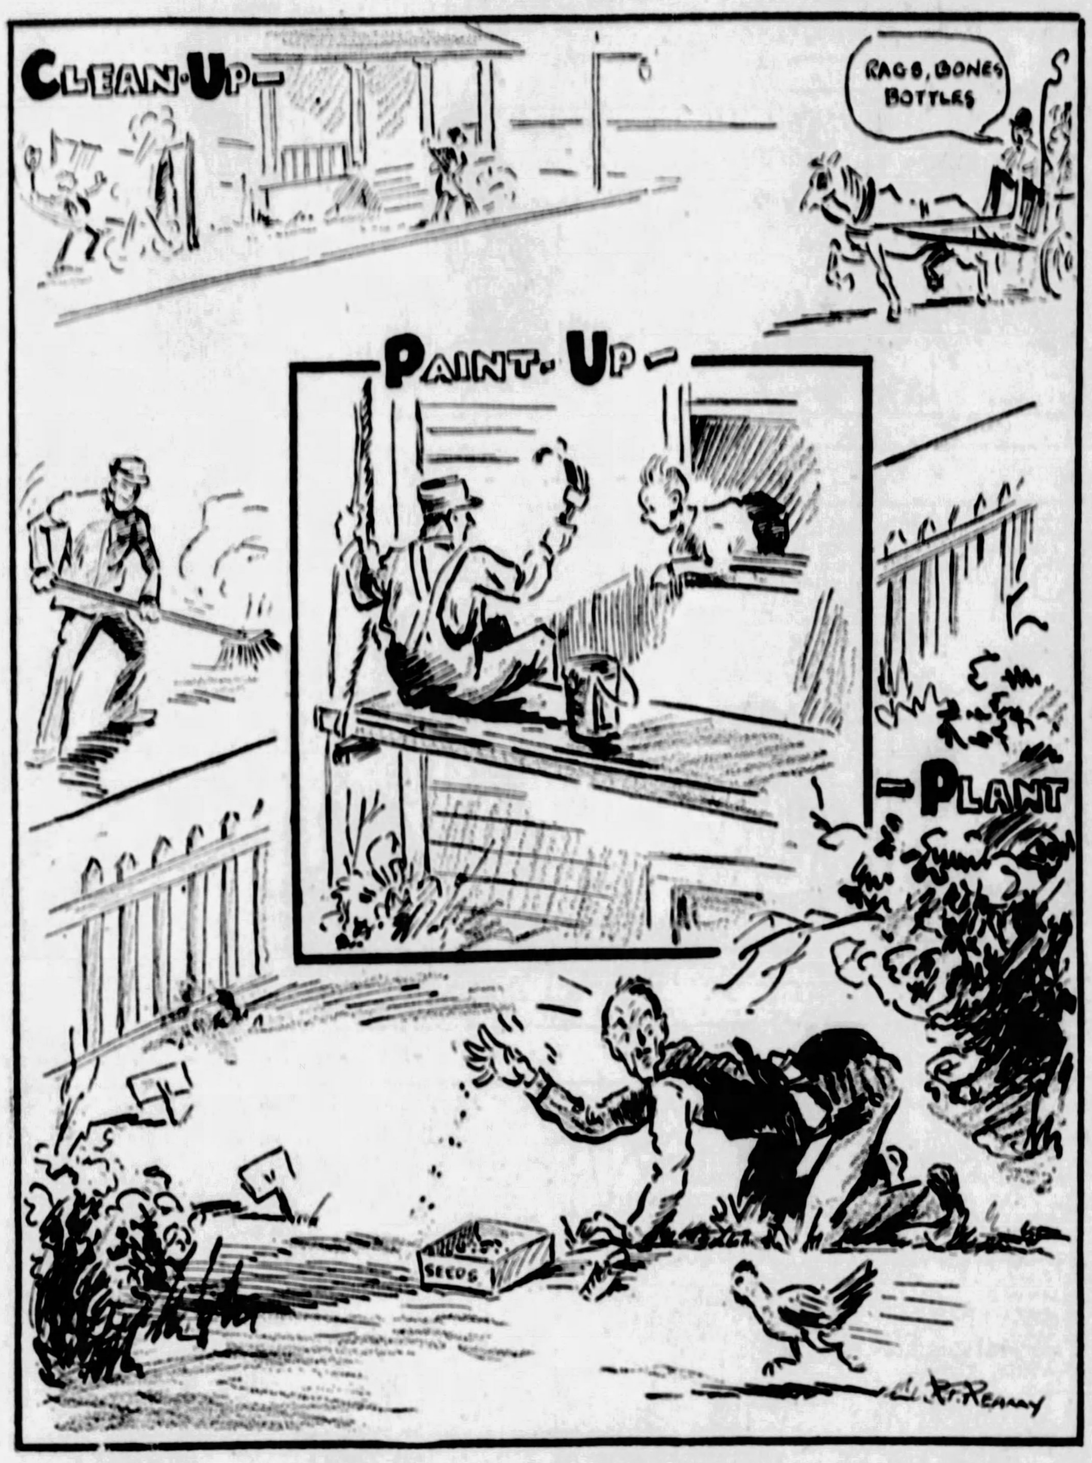
NOW IS THE TIME TO DO IT



Garrett P. Serviss Says:

The Glozel Puzzle

GLOZEL is a hamlet in central France, a few miles north of Vichy, the famous watering place. There, two or three years ago, a farmer found not very deep under the surface of one of his fields, which lay on a slight slope that had not been much cultivated, a number of clay tablets on which were inscribed curious forms which were interpreted as alphabetical signs of ancient date. Some local archaeologists being consulted, after doing a little digging for themselves, concluded that these objects belonged to the neolithic, or new stone age, and consequently were probably thousands of years older than the famous Phoenician letters, so long regarded as furnishing the originals for our alphabet. It was claimed that thirty or more different "letters" could be recognized, repeated in practically the same forms on different tablets.

The revolutionary nature of these claims attracted wide attention, and some of the best known archaeologists of Europe visited Glozel, made easy explorations (easy because the strange objects lay so near the surface, simply under grass and brush-covered soil), and arrived, in several cases, at the conclusion that the claims of the first discoverers were substantially correct. In addition to the strange inscriptions, there were other archaeological objects such as are customarily found on sites of ancient human habitation, including figures of so-called idols and one or two rude tombs or rough-walled excavations called tombs by their finders.

The inscribed tablets were found in such numbers that very soon the suspicion arose that there might be some trick behind the discovery. Some suggested that the objects had been manufactured recently and buried for the purpose of deception. That would be after the manner of the celebrated "Cardiff Giant," which was secretly interred in a field in the Onondaga Valley, in New York State, some sixty years ago, and, after being "discovered," and having puzzled the public and even some learned men for a number of years, finally became the appropriate property of P. T. Barnum.

A warm discussion arose in France over the curious finds, some insisting that they were undoubtedly of prehistoric age, and inventing the name "Glozelian period" to describe the date of their assumed making, while others affirmed that they were not prehistoric at all, but, at the most, not older than the time of the Roman occupation of Gaul. So high an authority as Salomon Reinach defended the neolithic view, while C. Jullian, the famous historian, insisted that they could only be of Gallo-Roman date, if they were even as old as that.

Finally, last fall, an international commission visited Glozel to make an examination on the spot and to furnish a report which it was hoped would settle the question; at least so far as the genuineness of the alleged archaeological objects was concerned. This commission made an unfavorable report, whereupon a fierce debate broke out between the supporters of the claims of the "Glozelians" and their opponents.

The Fradins, the people on whose land the objects were found, and who had established a small museum for preserving the finds, declared themselves outraged by the suggestions of fraud made by some of the examiners connected with the international commission, and lawsuits were threatened. The bitterness was increased by the refusal of the French government after the report of the commission to include the Glozel site in the list of national prehistoric monuments. But still the advocates of Glozel as a real prehistoric site, capable of furnishing entirely novel views of ancient culture in western Europe, stood by their guns, and up to the present writing there has been no final and decisive answer to the question whether this whole matter has been a huge practical joke or is truly the lifting of an unsuspected curtain covering the beginnings of civilization.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Consider Employes

YOU feel weak and nervous and irritable.

You are in no condition to work hard yourself, but the work must be done, and you hire a man or a woman to do it.

How do you treat the one who serves you?

Are you constantly picking out the little defects in your helper's methods?

Whenever you find a thing broken or marred, do you blame the help?

Are you constantly groaning over the expense your subordinates are?

Do you keep right at the heels of your assistant, nagging him on, to greater and more continuous endeavor?

Even in your best days, you could not work as hard and as unceasingly as you expect your employes to work.

You feel that you are spending the money, and you say you want the service, and you want it right.

And so you go on as if you had no heart, cutting in your remarks, ignoring the fact that your help are not made of iron, and you wonder why they seem ungrateful.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

To the East

DESIRES and dreams, I count them over:
The simplest one, though far from least,
That in their bright ranks I discover
In this a window to the east;

A window looking to the roses
That blossom in the morning sky,
An open window that discloses
A cloud's pale banners trailing by.

So, after shadow-shapes distress me
While night's dark legions are released,
Light routs all terrors that oppress me,
And joy comes gleaming up the east.

No other fancy can I fashion
So dear. Still, when all storms have ceased,
All fierce desire and hope and passion,
I want a window to the east!

Tales that are Told

Fearing the Worst

A WEALTHY, but rather mean, man invited three friends to dinner and bridge. The three guests met en route. One of them, MacPherson, said to the other two: "Just a word of warning, laddies. Beware of Evans' champagne."

Accordingly at dinner the two refused bubbly, but MacPherson had several glasses of it.

Somewhat mystified, the two tackled the Scot about his action when they were on their way home.

"What was wrong with the fizz, Mack?" asked one. "It seemed very good stuff."

"Oh, yes," said the Scot, "it was excellent. It wasn't the quality I was warning you against, it was the quantity. I was feared there wouldna be enough to go round more than once."

Bid Accepted

THE golf match was in full swing, and so was the club of an English player, for in making a particularly hard drive he sent his ball straight to the eye of Dougal McDougal, who was watching the game from what he had wrongly supposed to be a safe distance.

When Dougal had ceased to wonder whether it had been a motor car or a cannon-ball that had struck him, and when he had discovered the real cause of the mishap, his instinct for seizing the main chance asserted itself.

"This'll cost ye five pounds!" he yelled, advancing towards the player. "Five pounds!"

"But I shouted 'Fore!' as loudly as I could," protested the golfer.

"Did ye, now?" said Dougal. "I didna hear ye! I'll tak fower!"

Right Away!

AN ELDERLY man boarded a train at Crewe. The next stop was Warrington, and just as the train was about to leave Warrington a young man dashed along the platform and threw himself into a corner seat of the same compartment.

When the latter had had a little time to cool down from his strenuous exertions, the old man said:

"Look here, young man, there is no need for all this puffing and blowing. When I was your age, I could always catch a train without so much trouble."

"Sir," replied the young man, "allow me to say that I missed this train at Crewe."—London Tit-Bits.

Somebody Scored

"I HEAR you lent Biggs five shillings last night," said Tompkins.

"True," replied Simmons, "but it was only an investment. It will come back to me. Biggs owes Dick five shillings, and will hand over my two half-crowns to him. Dick will then pay it to Sam, who lent him that amount last week. Sam will then give it to Joe in settlement of an old debt. Joe owes me the same amount, and I shall take care to get it from him directly he receives it from Sam. I always looked on Joe's debt as a bad one, but by this means I shall get my own back."—London Tit-Bits.

Sold!

THE auctioneer held up a battered fiddle.

"Lot twenty-four," he announced. "Now, what am I offered for this beautiful violin? Take a look at its case. See the blurred finger-marks of remorseless time. To the merry notes of this fine old instrument the dames of fair France may have danced the stately minuet in the glittering ballrooms of Versailles. Now, gentlemen, what do you offer for this instrument?"

"Half a crown," said one.

"It's yours," declared the auctioneer, cheerfully. "Now for lot twenty-five!"

Housing and Crime

NEW YORK'S BAUMES COMMISSION, in its plea for better supervision of children's spare time, confirms a truth everybody knew when it says:

"Blocks having the worst delinquency records are the worst in housing."

Every approach to a better ordering of humanity's future in great cities comes to a dead end in this matter of housing. Lacking comfortable and attractive homes, the young are forced to seek recreation elsewhere. And nothing can take a good home's place.

Our cities have talked a lot about better housing. They will have to act.

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

NEW YORK, April 11.—Three sons of New York millionaires have taken obscure positions during the past year and all are reported making good. There is nothing particularly hot about a rich man's going to work. That is as it should be.

Yet it denotes the passing of a chronic figure—the rich young idler. He has long been a headache among those gentlemen with a messianic message who mount soap boxes and harangue the multitudes. He was, in short, the cause of much social unrest.

Lately he began to feel the chill. A righteous contempt sprung up everywhere for silk-stockinged fops whose aim in life was to be valeted to the superior gloss of one of those Vanity Fair veranda hounds. He wasn't treasured even in his own fair set.

Work became, after a fashion, his only salvation. The breaking up of the Four Hundred was largely due to the boredom of class consciousness. Society began to reach out for people who had achieved something in the world besides a handed-down fortune and an ability to ride to hounds and found it interesting.

The guest list at a society dinner these days is no longer a page from the Social Register. The social glitter now encompasses a sprinkling of playwrights, novelists, short story writers and up-from-nowhere heroes and heroines of the world of business and arts.

After all it seemed a little strange that a social register including a Kip Rhinelander ignored, say, an Edna Ferber or a Heifetz. There is no longer a "play to society" by the bourgeoise. It is the other way around. The doers are courted. Society has become an army of celebrity catchers.

Also men who have made their way in the world no longer receive society's baleful glare and sneer of "nouveaux riche." Their parents may have seen America first through the porthole of the steerage, but that doesn't matter any more. Times have changed. None of us these days wants a millionaire around because of his millions. He must be able to whistle through his teeth, or something at least.

The passing of the West Indian elevator operators in apartment houses is noted. Only a few are left, whereas they once ruled the upper West Side residence section. Their impudence was unmatched by any other class of workers in a city noted for impertinence. Their credo was they should be tipped into ordinary courtesy, and woe betide the tenant who ignored the creed. It finally got so a week scarcely passed without several of them being knocked deservedly cold by exasperated lessees. It also developed many were in league with robbers and tipped off when occupants of apartments were absent. They were a bad lot.

The apartment house janitor, too, used to be a fearful ogre whose word was law. He has become a better boy, due to the fact that apartment space is no longer at a premium. The slightest back talk and the apartment is likely to be vacated. The poor janitor has rough sledding lately. When basement dining rooms became popular he moved to the roof-pent houses, and now that they are a fashionable rage he seems to have no place left. Many who have suffered his insolence, however, could suggest places.

The ancient custom of giving rent free for the first month is now observed by several first-class apartment houses. But you must take a three-year lease.

Grade A bond salesmen suffer from sharp practices of the blue sky variety. As a matter of fact, high class bond salesmen take the same precaution of the high class bankers in guarding clients. They sell only securities that have passed acid tests. A bond paying over 6 per cent interest is discouraged. The average is 5½ per cent. I know several men who have become independently well fixed through the advice of bond salesmen who insisted on them making safe investments even at a loss of top commissions for inferior stuff.

Bootleggers posing as liner stewards are still plying their ancient trick. They solicit the passenger list by telephone two days after a ship docks—intimating they served the prospective patrons in the smoking room and have a few choice bottles of something special. Usually, they dispose of some kickless colored water at fancy prices.

A New Columbus

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The reader may often have wished that he might have lived in that year 1492, when Columbus crossed the watery wastes and discovered a new continent.

But to live in the year of our lord 1928 and to pick up the morning paper and see that young Lindbergh had completed a trip of 9,000 miles throughout the South American republics and back to St. Louis, or that he has successfully crossed the Atlantic Ocean and landed in Paris is really to live in the age of a new Columbus.

He has done what has never been done before. His stock in trade was merely a skilled hand and a clear brain. There was no great capital behind him, no organization that prompted him. He just did it himself.

And as far as I have been able to see, I have found no line in any paper anywhere criticizing or condemning him. With one voice the people of all countries have united in exalting Lindbergh. And with all he has carried off his victory so modestly and so humanly as to raise no resentment. For after all there is only one thing we resent in a man, be he great or small, and that is undue egotism.

He is easily the most outstanding figure in this twentieth century. If I could make my way through the great crowd and shake hands with him I would be glad to add my little tribute to his success.

He is the type whom the world is anxious to honor today. He is a doer and not a talker. But when he talks his language is in the simple terms of a doer and hence its eloquence.

Nobody voted for him and he was not elected to anything, but he ranks along with Abraham Lincoln and Gen. Grant as one who does things and does them with simplicity and punctuality.

Along with the other millions of the United States I am glad to stick my hat into the ring and to hurrah for Lindbergh! If I were to have another son I think I would call him Lindbergh, for there is no man whose example I would want him to imitate more than Lindbergh's, an example of adventurous youth combined with those sterling qualities of simplicity and modesty which ought to characterize a great man.

After all he does not seem to want anything. He does not ask for our money or our votes. He only wants a chance to go to work at that work which he understands best, which is flying. I hope he will stick to this and show us an example of a man who takes delight in doing that which he can do.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD.

MR. AND MRS. SAMUEL W. CORBETT, of Marion, Ill., married 68 years, boast they never had a quarrel, but when they get angry one of them leaves the room. They don't even dispute as to which one shall leave.

Mr. Corbett, who is 88, dug coal till he was 77, and he took part in 20 Civil War battles.

He needn't boast. He was tired out with hard work and fed up on fights.

A spider web negligee advertised. I guess that's bringing clothes down to the minimum!

The ladies in politics are certainly coming right along.

Margaret Haley, of Chicago, and stormy petrel who holds the job of business manager of the Teachers' Federation, made a political speech yesterday. Did she say to the chairman of the Board of Review, to whom she referred: "I am sorry, but we ladies feel that you are mistaken?" She DID NOT. What she said was:

"Mr. Chairman, you are sartorially perfect, but intellectually you are a prize boob!"

Whoopee!

Take the kids away from their mamas at birth, says Dr. John B. Watson, eminent psychologist. "Women prevent the fathers from doing anything for the children because they kiss and pet them and help them over difficulties, till they are so soft-boiled they can't meet the slightest emergency."

Now the next thing will be male nurse maids to hard-boil the babies.

What a life!

Ruth Hanna McCormick, now running for Congress, told a reporter six years ago that she had but two interests, her husband's career and milk for her babies. Now Mrs. McCormick is a widow and her children no longer drink milk, and she has become the liveliest woman politician in the country.

A war correspondent last night met a young advertising woman from one of the country's biggest department stores, "a comer," who was forgetting business before a warm fire, and having a dash of port. She passed the correspondent some remarkable home made candy.

"I don't see how you do it," he said. "It's wonderful candy."

"I worked my way through college making candy like that," said the girl. "In fact I made more out of the candy than I am earning now."

Said the gallant swain: "That's progres."
